NEW NAME IN DEATH MYSTERY

Dr. Campbell Reported to Have Told the Police That Man Had Made Death Threats

When Dr. Mary A. Campbell, the osteopath who was a partner in the practice of Dr. Celia Adams, takes the stand to testify in connection with Dr. Adams' death, she will tell of threats made against the young physician by a man who lives near Worcester, it was learned today.

Dr. Campbell was located today at the home of Mrs. George F. Jelly, No. 222 Rawson road, Brookline, where she is in seclusion.

The maid at the Jelly home denied that Dr. Campbell was there, but later Miss Campbell answered the telephone.

REFUSES TO TALK.

He declined to discuss the case in any way, and said she had been instructed to keep silent by the authorities.

Miss Campbell believes poison was substituted for headache powders which Dr. Adams habitually took, it became known today, and she has told the police that threats were made against Dr. Adams by a man living near Worcester.

Meanwhile District Attorney Pelletier, after a conference with his assistant, Mr. McInnes, today sent Lieutenant McDevitt to New Hampshire to seek out and question a woman witness in the case, and if possible to bring her to Boston.

Mrs. Harris, wife of Dr. Wilfred E. Harris, who was shot by Dr. E. D. Atwood because Dr. Atwood held Dr. Harris responsible for Celia Adams' death, visited Dr. Harris at the City Hospital today. Afterward, she said: "Dr. Harris is delirious at times, and is still very weak, but we expect his recovery."

Federal Move to Relieve Hay Fever Started

By International News Service.

Washington, July 24.

WITH two per cent. of the population of the United States suffering from hay fever, the United States public health service today inaugurated a campaign to relieve the malady.

The service will attempt to have State Legislatures and citizens generally co-operate in suppressing vegetable growth known to spread and intensify hay fever. The service's investigation shows that many young children contract the disease, which becomes deep-seated in their systems before its presence is known because parents and even doctors often believe the children have nothing more than colds.

ANOTHER U-LINER COMING

Alarm for the Fate of the Bremen Upsets Plans for the Departure of the Deutschland

Berlin, July 24.—Another German merchant submarine will sail for the United States in a few days.

By International News Service.

Baltimore, July 24.—A serious dilemma today confronted the German super-submarine Deutschland, straining at her mooring lines for the long return trip across the Atlantic to her home port in Germany.

Repeated alarming reports of the Deutschland's sister ship Bremen, and candidate information that a formidable fleet of British and French warships has been organized to block the Deutschland's homeward voyage, completely upset the plans of the Deutschland's crew.

Two possible solutions of the difficulty were considered at earnest conferences of the agents of the liner, Paul Hilken and Port Captain Hinsch, with Captain Paul Koenig, in command of the Deutschland.

They were:

A continuance of the present "watchful waiting" until the fate of the Bremen can be determined with certainty and as a result the possible delay in Baltimore of the Deutschland until the European war is over.

An abandonment of the present plan and a daredevil dash to sea by the Deutschland, the captain and crew to risk their lives and the fate of their vessel on the chance of evading enemy ships in both the western and eastern Atlantic.

If the allied lines continues to tighten the Germans may decided to tie the submarine up for the remainder of the war rather than risk her loss.

The Deutschland lay quietly at her pier today while the agents wrangled of her future career.

The German officials of the customs service, carrying out the rules of neutrality, sealed the wireless apparatus aboard the German submarine Deutschland. The officials went aboard the submarine and after a complete inspection of her wireless equipment sealed the instruments. The wireless will remain sealed until the Deutschland is ready to leave.

Conferences among the German agents were followed by an unwonted stir of activity about the submarine. A pipe line was strung from the North German Lloyd liner Neckar to the Deutschland, and a complete fresh water supply was put aboard the submersible. The tug Timmins nearby was backed into the slip with the Deutschland and in a few minutes a full head of steam had the tug's safety valves screaming.

While the sealing of the wireless, enforced by the two-weeks' stay in port of the submarine, indicated that an immediate departure was not to be expected, all preparations for sailing were continued.

AVIATOR SETS NEW RECORD

Daring Airman Is Captured by the Austrians Sixty Miles from the Russian Lines

By CHARLES F. BERTELLI,
Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

Paris, July 24.—A French army aviator has flown across Germany dropping proclamations on the city of Berlin.

News of this world-astonishing flight was given out officially today.

The airman, Sub-Lieutenant A. Marchal, was compelled to land within sixty miles of the Russian lines, near Chelm, in Poland, where he was made a prisoner by the Austrians.

In the course of his long flight, the official announcement says, Aviator Marchal covered about 1,300 kilometers, or approximately 806 miles in a straight line.

PROVISIONS FOR 14 HOURS.

This flight breaks all records for distance. The longest previous flight ever made in an aeroplane, on a practically straight line, was by M. Paul Hilken and Port Captain Hinsch, with Captain Paul Koenig, in command of the Deutschland.

They were:

A continuance of the present "watchful waiting" until the fate of the Bremen can be determined with certainty and as a result the possible delay in Baltimore of the Deutschland until the European war is over.

LARGE STOREHOUSE BURNS AT SOMERSET

Fall River, July 24.—Fire early today destroyed a large storehouse of the Bay State Shellac Company at Somerset. Fire officials set the loss at $10,000. The company suffered a loss of $40,000 a few days ago when fire swept their local plant. Arthur E. Parks, treasurer of the company, was killed at Plainfield, Ct., a short time ago, when the machine he was operating collided with a passenger train.

'SWEETEST GIRL' WILL WED SOON

Strange Warship Is Sighted Off Minot's Light

A strange warship, supposed to be a Britisher, was sighted off Minot's light early today.

She was in sight from Hull and from Scituate, and is described as having one funnel, two masts and three fire control stations on the first mast.

She was a small craft, perhaps a gunboat. Her flag was indistinct.

It is supposed she was looking for the merchant submarine Bremen, and her presence was taken as evidence that the allies have not captured the Bremen yet, at any rate.

Casement Loses Chance to Appeal to House of Lords

By International News Service.

London, July 24.—Sir Roger Casement has lost another point in his fight to escape death, according to the Manchester Guardian. This newspaper announced today that the British attorney-general, Sir Frederick Lee Smith, had refused to grant to the Irish knight a certificate that would permit him to appeal to the House of Lords.

Premier Asquith today received an Irish petition praying that Casement's death sentence be remitted. It is signed by six bishops, twenty-six members of Parliament, fifty-one members of universities and members of learned bodies.

TOWNSEND WANTS TROOPS RECALLED

By International News Service.

Washington, July 24. — Senator Townsend of Michigan, in the Senate, today declared that the National Guard had been called out "Under false representations," and that it ought to be withdrawn from the border at once. He bitterly assailed the President's policy and strongly intimated the guard was sent to the border for political purposes.

"I have received letters from fathers and mothers of boys who enlisted in the belief they were really needed for service in Mexico," Senator Townsend said. "The men have been taken from their work in a Northern climate and are being held at the border for no purpose. I believe they should be returned to their usual vocations and their schools."

CAMBRIDGE GIVES DRUGGIST LICENSE

Justice Crosby in the Supreme Court today issued a writ of mandamus commanding Mayor Wendell D. Rockwood of Cambridge to sign a sixth class liquor license for James McMinn of No. 272 Broadway, Cambridge, a druggist.

McMinn claimed he had petitioned for the license, that the aldermen had voted to grant it, and that he had filed the required bond.

Mayor Rockwood claimed that after his refusal to sign the license, the aldermen had to pass it again by a two-thirds vote.

The case was a test case, involving twenty-six other licenses, and Mayor Rockwood must now sign them all.

REDMOND WARNS OF ACUTE UNREST

By International News Service.

London, July 24.—The government of Ireland has been taken over by the Lord Justices, acting under the general direction of the central government, Premier Asquith announced in the House of Commons today.

The amending home rule bill for Ireland will not be introduced for the present, the premier said, as there appears no substantial prospect of an agreement at this time.

John E. Redmond obtained leave to move adjournment in order to call attention to the rapidly growing unrest in Ireland. This agitation, Mr. Redmond said, resulted from the failure of the government to carry out entirely the terms submitted for the settlement of the Irish troubles.

The Nationalists insist that the home rule bill shall conform to the terms agreed upon on the settlement, and they say they will have nothing to do with the proposals to make the exclusion of the province of Ulster permanent, or to reduce the Irish representation in the Imperial Parliament pending the final settlement.

British Make New Gains in Battle North of Somme

By SIDNEY B. CAVE.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, July 24.—Further ground has been gained by the British in High Wood and at Guillemont on the Somme front, the War Office announced in an official report issued at noon.

The greater part of Pozieres, which was entered by the Australians on Sunday, is now in possession of the British.

Sixty prisoners and two guns were captured.

The War Office statement, issued at noon, follows:

"Apart from a continuous heavy shelling by both sides, a night of comparative calm followed yesterday's severe fighting between High Wood and Guillemont. Repeated counter attacks by the enemy were unsuccessful. Heavy casualties were inflicted on the enemy by our artillery and machine guns.

"We gained ground at High Wood and in the direction of Guillemont.

"In the neighborhood of Pozieres we scored important advantages. In spite of the stubborn defense of the enemy, a large portion of the village is now in our hands. In the neighborhood we captured two guns and sixty prisoners."

QUIET SOUTH OF SOMME.

Bad weather has hindered operations on that section of the Somme front south of Hordecourt, where the French armies are operating.

The Paris War Office in its official communique today stated that the night was calm.

During the past ten days the French on the Verdun front have captured 800 prisoners. Artillery duels continue at various points along the line.

The text of the Paris communique follows:

"On the Somme the night passed quietly. The weather is bad.

"North of the Aisne our reconnoitring parties penetrated enemy trenches near Vailly and brought back some prisoners.

DROP BOMBS ON LUNEVILLE.

"On the right bank of the Meuse, in the course of a small action last night in the outskirts of Chapelle Saint Rine, we captured thirty prisoners. According to late reports the total number of prisoners taken by us during the last ten days in this sector exceeds 800.

"Last night a German aeroplane threw bombs upon Luneville. One person was wounded.

"Sub-Lieutenant Chapuit yesterday fought down his eighth enemy aeroplane, which fell into the Frenes-en-Woevre. A second German machine, attacked at close quarters, was brought down near Ft. Vaux.

"On the night of July 22 and the day of July 23, our bombarding aeroplanes threw eight shells on the station at Conflans, forty on the barracks near Vigneulles and twenty-five on the buildings of the aerodrome at Dieuze."

Attack Teutons' Carpathian Lines

By International News Service.

Petrograd, July 24.—Having thrown back the Teutons with a series of sledge hammer blows, the Russians are now attacking the Austro-Hungarian positions, defending the main ridge of the Carpathians in Southern Galicia.

There have been heavy rainstorms in the Carpathians and the mountain streams have been turned to raging torrents, while the roads have been transformed into quagmires, but the combined resistance from both the Austro-Hungarian armies and the obstacles furnished by the elements have failed to check the steady advance of the Muscovites.

Heavy fighting is in progress between Kimpolung and Delatyn.

The forces of General Sakarhoff, that have been operating in Volhynia, are believed to have crossed the frontier into Galicia, but there has been no official announcement to this effect.

At the northern end of the battle line, General Kuropatkin's army group is increasing its pressure against the Germans army of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg lying along the Dvina river.

South of Riga, where the Russians are credited with having rolled back the Germans for a distance of five miles, violent artillery duels are reported in official advices from the front.

Italian War Office Reports New Gains.

By International News Service.

Rome, July 24.—The Italian War Office announced today that the occupation of upper Trevignolo and St. Pellegrino valleys has been made complete. Italian forces have occupied the summit of Monte Stradone and taken the positions at Cema di Boche.

Despite Austro-Hungarian resistance the Italians have made further progress at Monte Cimone.

The text of the official report follows:

"From Stelvio to the Lagarina valley, the artillery on both sides had been extremely active. In the Astico region our attacks at Monte Cimone gained us further progress. On Sunday we captured the enemy's defences just below the summit.

"On the Sette Communi plateau, two attacks against the trenches which we had taken on Saturday on Monte Zebio were repulsed with the heaviest losses to the Austro-Hungarians.

"Between Tonezza and Asiago we have completed the occupation of the upper Trevignolo and St. Pellegrino valleys, capturing the summit of Monte Stradone and new positions on the slopes of Cima Echie.

"The enemy continued his bombardment of Cortina d'Ampezzo while we retaliated by shelling places in the Drave valley. In the upper Pelsa and Val Sexten Nero the artillery is carrying on an extremely violent bombardment."

Admit British Have Penetrated Pozieres.

Berlin, July 24.—That British troops have penetrated Pozieres on the Somme front was admitted today by the German war office. The English entered Guillemont, southeast of Pozieres, but were driven out by the Germans.

On the eastern front the Russians were repulsed at Beresteczko.

The German war office says that the British forces on the Somme front have been reinforced by soldiers drawn from other fronts.

The official statement follows:

"West front—English attacks reported yesterday on the Thiepval-Guillemont line were carried out by detachments from eleven British divisions, several of which had been hastily brought up from other fronts. The only advantage the enemy was able to achieve on the whole line which we had not yet been able to consolidate was the penetration of a few houses in Pozieres. The enemy had to pay extraordinarily heavy losses in the fighting around Longueval.

"A counter attack by our Brandenburg grenadiers drove the enemy out of the sap quarry southwest of Guillemont, where he had temporarily succeeded in getting a footing. We captured three officers and 141 unwounded men.

"South of the Somme, French undertakings at Soyecourt and west of Vermandovillers failed. There have been artillery duels and local fighting.

"Since July 15, the booty taken by us includes 48 machine guns.

"On the right bank of the Meuse (Verdun front) artillery activity assumed great intensity, but there were no infantry actions.

"East front—At the northern end of the front and along the line held by the troops of General Von Bothmer there have been no events of importance.

"Northwest of Beresteczko strong Russian attacks were completely repulsed."

It was also announced by the War Office that the Brandenburg Grenadiers on the Somme front were the same troops that captured Fort Douaumont northeast of Verdun. This was the first official admission that troops had been moved from Verdun to reinforce the Germans on the Somme front.

Report Russians Gain 12 Miles Near Riga

London, July 24.—The Germans have been driven back twelve miles on a point on the Riga front, according to a Reuter's dispatch from Petrograd.

"Progress for the Russians is claimed on a front running from the Gulf of Riga to Uxkull, a distance of more than thirty miles, the greatest advance being made along the coast line.

The dispatch says that fighting went on without pause for four days prior to Sunday. It has now halted, the Russians require time to consolidate the ground they have gained and the Germans are waiting for reinforcements being brought from other sectors of the eastern front.

BRAZIL MAY SEIZE ALL GERMAN SHIPS

Rio Janeiro, July 24.—The question of requisitioning German ships in Brazilian ports will shortly be taken up by the Brazilian Congress, Deputy Goncalves Nala is preparing a resolution authorizing such a requisition which he will present to the Chamber.

WAR SUMMARY

In heavy fighting from Thiepval to a point east of Hardecourt, the British have made numerous small gains, they announced today.

The Australian and New Zealand Army Corps, which was given the brunt of the fighting at the Dardanelles, has likewise been given the hardest work to do in Picardy and the British announce that the Australians have entered and captured most of the village.

At Longueval, the British admit, the Germans have forced their way into the northern part of the village; while at Guillemont the outskirts of the village have changed hands twice and remain with the Germans.

Net result of the fighting, on the face of the British claims, some slight gains at Pozieres, and some slight losses at Longueval.

The German version of this fighting is that all attacks were repulsed.

The French report the repulse of a German attack south of Soyecourt.

The Russians announce Teutonic offensives near Smorgon and on the Stokhod—which, they say, were repulsed.

The Austrians admit withdrawal to the crest of the Carpathians in southern Bukowina. The Russians claim only about 500 prisoners in that section, so it may be that in this exceptional case the Austrians did withdraw instead of being driven back. For the Russians to send any large force as far south as the Carpathians is to expose themselves to a dangerous flank blow by the Germans from Brody to Kovel.

The Italians claim some slight progress.

The Turks claim to have routed the Russians near Revanduz, in the Caucasus, driving the Russians back about twelve miles.

KAROLYI PARTY URGES PEACE COURT

The Boston American-London Daily Telegraph Exclusive Cable Service.

Milan, July 24.—A declaration, published by the Hungarian Party of Independence, reconstituted recently with Count Michael Karolyi as its president, says the party hopes "the present war may be finished as soon as possible by a peace representing the country's interests and territorial integrity. The present war shows excessive armaments and the alliances of great powers, opposed to each other, have caused the tension which brought on the disastrous catastrophe.

"The party demands that, in concluding peace, the settlement of conflicts by international courts of arbitration be made compulsory for every power."

Crown Prince in Aeroplane.

Amsterdam, July 24.—Braving the perils of French fliers and the fire from high angle guns, the German Crown Prince made a fifteen-minute flight over the French lines at Verdun on Sunday, says a dispatch to the Saarbrucke Zeitung. It is stated that there is much opposition in Germany to the Crown Prince thus risking his life.

BRITISH DEFY U. S. ON MAIL SEIZURES

London, July 24.—In a memorandum made public here in advance of the formal reply of the British government to the protest of the United States against censorship of American mails, the Foreign Office forecasts a determination not to abandon the censorship.

The only concession made to the United States is a promise of less delay in the future.

Delays in fact, it is pointed out, have been practically done away with as England has provided a special mail bag for that character of papers where even a slight tie-up might imperil shipments of perishable goods.

The memorandum was handed the United States Ambassador Page a few days ago. A full note, it is said, is now in process of preparation. Others of the Allies are collaborating with Great Britain on the reply. No time is indicated for its being forwarded.

BRITISH TAP U. S. MAIL.

The memorandum is confined to the specific cases cited in the United States protest. The outstanding cases were those of the Standard Underground Cable Company of Pittsburgh and the Macniff Horticultural Company of New York.

The United States government contends that in the case of the Standard Underground Cable Company, as a result of its censorship, a contract was lost to one of its British competitors in consequence of information which was received by the English company from that source.

The Foreign Office makes tart reply to this "apparent insinuation."

"His Majesty's government are astonished," says the memorandum, "that such an insinuation should be made."

It says that the Standard Company's complaint apparently was not thoroughly digested. It then offers, at some length, argument to show that the Standard Company's correspondence with Norwegian points went through before Great Britain commenced to exercise censorship over mails passing between the United States and Norway.

GOODS DESTROYED.

In regard to the Macniff Company, which complained that perishable goods it had in shipment were destroyed because of delays in the censorship of shipping papers seized from the mails, the Foreign Office points out that this is now guarded against by the special mail bag provided.

ICEMAN IS FREED ON DEATH CHARGE

Francis E. Dougan, twenty-one, of East street, Dorchester, a driver for the Boston Ice Company, appeared in the Dorchester Court today before Judge Merritt on the charge of manslaughter in causing the death of Charles E. Dane, sixty-nine, of Hampden circle, Wollaston. No cause was found and Dougan was directed. Dougan's wagon ran over Dane at the Field's Corner transfer station on the night of July 15, the injured man dying later at the City Hospital. Evidence showed that Dougan was not responsible for the accident.

RUSSIANS 15 MILES FROM ERZINGAN

Petrograd, July 24.—Grand Duke Nicholas' Russian army in Turkish Armenia is advancing upon Erzingan, it is stated in official dispatches from Tiflis today. The Russians are only fifteen miles from the Turkish city.

AVIATOR FLIES OVER GERMANY

evening, Sub-Lieutenant A. Marchal left Nancy, France, in a Nieuport monoplane of special type, taking with him provisions and oil to last fourteen hours. His mission was to traverse all of Germany at a moderate altitude and to drop proclamations on Berlin, afterward continuing on to Russia. This audacious raid was accomplished point by point.

"His mission accomplished, unfortunately, the French airman, after having flown all night, was forced to land near Cholm, in Poland, at 8:30 on the morning of June 23, less than sixty miles from the Russian lines. He was made a prisoner.

INTERNED AT SALZERBACH.

"The proclamation which the sub-lieutenant threw down on Berlin commenced with the words:

"'We might have bombarded the open city of Berlin, killing women as well as innocent children, but we content ourselves with throwing down the following.'

"Aviator Marchal, who is interned at Salzerbach, sent a postal card which gives us these details:

"'I was made prisoner at 8:30 a. m. on the 23d of June. The Austrian officers would not believe me when I told them what I had done, but my arrival proved it. They were forced to yield before the reality.

"'It was a defective spark plug that stopped me. I had descended and replaced the spark plug and again set my motor running. Unfortunately it was necessary to change two others. I was captured at that moment. Imagine my chagrin.'"

British Report U. S. Surgeon in Ireland

By International News Service.

New York, July 24.—An elderly, but well set up man, walked off the gangplank of the American liner Paul with a small package in his hand. He was Richard Ebbet, an American veterinary surgeon who was deported from Ireland by the British authorities because they had read his letters to friends in this country. The package was the sole possession he was allowed to bring with him.

Ebbet is a native of Grand Island, Neb., where he was born sixty years ago.

Four years ago he gave up his practice in this country and went to Old Ireland to practice. Ireland, about twenty miles from Dublin. There he commenced business as a veterinary surgeon.

"I reported regularly every year to the American consul in Dublin," he said on landing.

BRITISH SEARCHED HOUSE.

"On May 20th last an automobile drove up in front of my door and a number of officials from Dublin entered my house. They searched it thoroughly but the only thing they could find was an old Malayan kris—a sort of knife used by the Malayans.

"They took this away from me without apology, and then departed without saying anything. I wrote to Mr. W. E. Adams, our consul, in Dublin. I got no reply and then wrote to the Ambassador Page. I referred me to the consul, and finally I got a letter from Mr. Adams saying he had not received any letters from me.

"On Friday, July 14th, two policemen came to my house and told me they wanted to help me get back my kris. They asked me to accompany them to the barracks. I did so. On arriving they asked me to go into a room and the next moment the door was locked.

"Some time later a couple of detectives came along and told me I was ordered deported and would have to leave with them for Liverpool. I was not given any time to get any of my belongings.

LETTERS CAUSE OF TROUBLE.

"On the way I asked them why I was being deported. They told me they did not know, but perhaps it was because I had written to friends in America telling of conditions in Ireland.

"On arrival in Liverpool I was put on board the St. Paul, and here I am.

Mr. Ebbet declared he was going direct to Washington to protest to the State Department. He is also considering some kind of legal action against the British government.

STAMP ENVELOPES IN WAR ON GERMS

Recommending stamped envelopes in preference to stamps, Postmaster Murray today said such a routine would do away with the possibility of disease being absorbed by the mucilage on the latter and transferred to the hand or mouth and causing sickness.

He made this statement when his attention was directed to an article in a medical journal touching on the spread of diseases by means of mucilage on postage stamps.

"It is true there is danger of disease being spread by the mucilage on postage stamps," he said, "but the postoffice department is in no position to do anything about it at present. My solution is for people to purchase stamped envelopes."

British Defeat German Flotilla of Destroyers

By International News Service.

London, July 24.—British naval forces won victorious in a running fight with German destroyers in the northwest of the coast of Holland. The scene of the naval engagement was off Schouwen Bank, about 40 miles northwest of Zeebrugge, the German naval base in Belgium.

The official report on the battle, issued by the British Admiralty today, states that the German craft, though hit, succeeded in escaping to the Belgian coast.

The Admiralty statement follows:

"At midnight Saturday, near North Hinder Light, some of our night cruisers sighted three enemy destroyers, who retired before any damage was inflicted upon them. Subsequently off Schouwen Bank six enemy destroyers were engaged and in a running fight were repeatedly hit, but succeeded in reaching the Belgian coast. One of our vessels was hit once.

"One officer and a man were slightly wounded. There was no other damage or casualty."

This is the first time that German naval force have shown any activity since the Jutland battle. It is probable that the Teuton vessels engaged and driven from the sea were a flotilla sent out from Zeebrugge to prey upon British shipping.

Berlin, July 24.—German torpedo boats appeared off the mouth of the Thames Saturday night, it was announced by the German Admiralty today in the following official statement:

"Saturday night German torpedo boats made a raid from the Flanders coast to near the mouth of the Thames River without meeting any enemy ships. Returning Sunday morning they encountered several small British cruisers of the Arrow class and some destroyers. In a brief gun duel we covered these ships and our boats returned to their base undamaged.

Asquith Now Asks War Credit Vote of Two Billions

By International News Service.

London, July 24.—A vote of credit for $2,250,000,000 was moved in the House of Commons today by Premier Asquith. This brings the total credits this year up to $5,250,000,000 and the total since the beginning of the war to about $14,160,000,000.

The Premier said that the total expenditure for the government during April 1 up to last Saturday were $2,795,000,000. The treasury has in hand now about $205,000,000. In explaining the expenditures, Mr. Asquith said that the average is costing approximately $25,000,000 a day.

His recent statement that $30,000,000 was being spent daily, the Premier explained, was meant to include all the expenditures of the government, both ordinary and extraordinary.

Mr. Asquith included the expenditures between the first of April and last Saturday as follows:

Army and navy munitions, $1,895,000,000.

Loans to England's allies, $785,000,000.

Food, supplies and railways, $115,000,000.

"I hope the expenditure for the army and navy does not exceed the present rate," said Mr. Asquith. "Munitions have remained stationary at their highest level, but expenditures for them may increase."

American Flyer Shoots Down Third German War Plane

By CHARLES F. BERTELLI,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, July 24.—Kiffin Rockwell, the daring young American aviator from Atlanta, Ga., has added to his laurels by shooting down his third German war plane. The sky combat took place on Friday, midst the clouds, 10,000 feet above the ground.

Rockwell was reconnoitring with Bert Hall above the German lines when he sighted a German machine ahead and gave chase.

Meanwhile two other German aeroplanes which were above Rockwell, and which he hadn't seen swooped downward.

All joined the fight, but in the meantime Rockwell had gotten the range of one of the hostile machines and soon shot it down. The two Americans then returned through the clouds to their own lines. Both machines were riddled with machine gun bullets, but neither aviator was hit.

SPIES BACK OF TRADE BOYCOTT

Washington, July 24.—It is intimated in administration circles that President Wilson is considering armed neutrality with which to defeat Great Britain's warfare upon America's neutral foreign trade under the guise of a blacklist of American individuals and firms.

The President was represented as being disturbed by the evidences of British aggression at the expense of citizens of the United States, and to have indicated to members of the Cabinet his determination to bring Great Britain to account.

The action under consideration, it was said, is twofold:

1—The furnishing of public vessels as a convoy for merchant ships flying the American flag.

2—The purchase from German owners of several large ships which have been tied up at their docks in this country ever since the war began.

The establishment of an embargo was said to have been considered and discarded by Administration officials as unduly protective and injurious.

Instead of refusing to sell to Great Britain, it was stated, the United States may furnish an armed convoy which would prevent interference of any kind by English or French warships with the American merchant ships so protected.

The Department of Justice secret agents, as well as the experts of the Department of Commerce, are seeking to determine the approximate effect of a blacklist on American commerce.

The investigation being conducted by the Department of Justice is to learn if American law is being violated by British representatives in the United States and by American firms which restrict their business to trade limited by British permits issued by the British embassy or consular agents.

It has been practically established, it was said, that the British espionage system in the United States obtains data upon which to prosecute its warfare upon American commerce by wire-tapping and mail scrutiny.

It has been asserted that the British embassy never made any complaints made by and through the government's Foreign Trade Bureau than does the bureau itself. If evidence is uncovered by Federal agents concerning the operations of these agents and the British embassy may find some of its attaches in the same position as members of the German embassy whose government was invited to quit them.

If British consular agents are discovered to have participated in or directed operations contrary to the laws of the United States, they will be prosecuted in the Federal courts.

FREIGHTER ASHORE NEAR GRAND MANAN

Eastport, Me., July 24.—The freight steamer Tyne, owned by the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company of London, is ashore on Old Proprietor, one of the Mair ledges, near Grand Manan. She went on during a dense fog, according to information which reached here today when communication with Grand Manan was re-established. The forepeak and No. 1 hold were full of water, but the steamer was resting easily, with assistance not thought to be necessary. It was expected she would be pulled off at the weather continued clear. The steamer has a cargo of lumber intended for use in constructing trenches in France.

BOSTON TROOPS, IN SHARP FIGHT, DRIVE OFF MEXICAN ATTACKERS

GUARDSMEN PROVE VALOR UNDER FIRE

By BERT FORD.

El Paso, Tex., July 24.—More than fifty shots were exchanged at 9 o'clock last night between Mexican snipers and outposts made up of C Company of the Ninth Regiment near the oil works skirting Eucalyptus avenue, in the heart of a Mexican colony.

The action lasted about ten minutes and was warm. It was a livelier skirmish than that fought by L Company of Natick several days ago, but in the darkness it was impossible to tell whether any of the militia bullets took effect. The boys of C Company escaped injury, but bullets whistled all around them as they lay flat and pumped lead back in squad fire.

Lieutenant W. J. Kievenaar, commanding C Company, rushed to the [illegible] telephone after the skirmish and reported to Colonel Edward J. Logan.

BULLETS PIERCE WALL.

At 9:30 shots were fired across the border at Camp Cotton. Two bullets were fired into the refreshment booth and entrance to camp where the Boy State Infantry is located.

The bullets pierced the wall and knocked over stock. There were milliamen in the booth at the time. It was just before closing time. The shooting at such close range startled the camp. Captain J. J. Lawless, ordnance expert of the Ninth, and a marksman of national reputation, examined the holes in the booth and found one of the bullets, which he said resembled a 30-30. He figured that it had been fired within 200 yards.

The canal and railroad tracks skirt the camp at that point and on the side opposite that occupied by the Massachusetts infantry are troops from Michigan and regulars. In order to creep within the estimated range the snipers took chances and were ambushed barely back of the headquarters of General Frederick Sumner, commander of the Second Massachusetts Brigade.

JAP COOKS SCARED.

The shooting scared the three Japanese cooks in the officers' club at brigade headquarters. They snuffed out lights and hid under tables.

General Sweetser and Major Charles T. Cahill ran toward the camp picket lines to investigate the two shots that struck the light at the refreshment booth. Colonel Logan quickly summoned his staff in conference.

The firing at Eucalyptus avenue was started by two Mexicans who were challenged and refused to stop. They came to within fifteen yards of the barbed wire fence defining the boundary and were challenged four times when both whipped out revolvers and fired at Sergeant Robert A. O'Neil of Dorchester.

O'Neil and the ten forming the coast outposts replied with a volley. At the third outpost of C Company, near boundary monument No. 10, Privates Leo McCarthy and Patrick K. Burnoff, both of Charlestown, were fired on by snipers hidden in a tree. These snipers also used revolvers.

Private McCarthy said:

"The first I knew there was a report from a tree just over the line followed by other pistol flashes. I fell on my stomach and fired. Private Burnoff joined me. We kept pumping and heard firing at the other outposts. I don't know whether we hit the bullseye or not, but they didn't hit us and that's a bet.

"It was exciting. I felt queer when the shots rang out. Gives you a tickling feeling in the throat and the first thing you know you forget it and want to keep blazing away."

Major William J. Casey of the battalion, a terror of the Ninth, was on outpost duty last night. The battalion is made up of Companies A, C, D and L.

The last-named company, from Natick, figured in the first skirmish last week and killed two Mexicans.

Major Casey and Lieutenant Francis O'Kane had just finished a tour of the outposts which they made in the saddle. They crossed Eucalyptus avenue in an automobile and received Lieutenant Kievenaar's report.

Company D, commanded by Lieutenant Nicholas A. Fleming, had the Americus mess at Camp Cotton, where the sniping of the refreshment booth occurred.

The Mexicans opened fire at three points almost simultaneously; at the old works, at Private McCarthy and Burnoff at Monument No. 10, and at the entrance to Camp Cotton.

This is the nearest approach to an organized attack since the Massachusetts troops replaced the regulars on outpost duty.

HOMESICKNESS DREADED MORE THAN BULLETS ON BORDER

By BERT FORD.

Second Massachusetts Brigade Headquarters, El Paso, Tex., July 24.—Sand storms, better known as "Texas twisters," disease-laden flies and Mexican bullet are not the only things feared by those in charge of the 5,000 or more Bay State troops strung along the border.

Homesickness has appeared, not openly, but so strongly under the surface that mental attitude of the rank and file has become a great big problem. It is every bit a mental job to keep troops happy as it is to feed them and keep them healthy; in fact, contented minds go a long way toward military efficiency.

RUSH ORDER FOR FILMS.

So in order to straighten the homesickness germ, the Massachusetts commanders have started a campaign of amusement. Colonel Edward L. Logan of the Ninth Regiment wired to Adjutant-General Charles H. Cole for State-owned "movies" and received a reply that the equipment was to be shipped to El Paso at once. Colonel Logan also wired to Paul Keith, who is an honorary member of the Ninth, to send films, but to be sure to send "cheerful ones."

"Tommy" Boles, one of the Ninth's mounted orderlies, all of whom are college men, drew tears from scores of eyes last night when he played "The Rosary" on a Perfect Day" on the dusty upright piano in the mess shack of Company C. Private Worcester, "Tommy" is a finished pianist and when he innocently switched from "Home to sentimental jazz and ragtime with the piece mentioned, there was scarcely a dry eye in the audience.

AUDIENCE GROWS.

And that audience was bigger than "Tommy" realized, for the strains had caused the officers and privates not only to fill the messhouse, but to gather quietly outside. The night was still and hot and moonlight, and the music carried across the boundary to where the Carranza outposts studied the twinkling lights of the new city of Texas.

Further along a photograph was scratching out all sorts of jingles in a pyramidal tent on C Company's street, Eighth Regiment. Lieutenant Francis L. Nelson had the machine sent down. As Eighth Regiment is a military credential which gave him access to the camps, when shipping the bale of printed and "Diana," a baby goat, was snooting under the cot of Private Sylvester Wormser, Jr. One of the soldier lads from Cambridge laid on another record. It was "Home, Sweet Home," and it reached the tent of all save the barber and the man with half a hair cut and the goat.

COULDN'T STAND TUNE.

Away from that tune the youngsters told all about the kid which they bought from a Mexican boy which they agreed must be a mountain goat because it leaped from cot to cot so gracefully. They told of the wonderful diet, which included everything from cigarettes to old socks and shaving suds, but most of them could not listen to "Home, Sweet Home."

There was a grim sermon in the psychology of that music for the effects, and the men in command have not been slow about analyzing it. So there will be amusements galore, boxing bouts and musicales and minstrel shows and dancing.

A few more company streets and the officers' club of the Eighth was reached, a quartet was singing to piano music and it sounded great. They were singing the Eighth Regiment's border battle hymn, the words of which are sung to Harvard's line-buckling song, words which proclaim that the boys of the Eighth are from Massachusetts and Yankees through and through, and hot on the trail of Villa, and that they will show the sons of Mexico what Yankee boys can do.

CHEERFULNESS IS PROBLEM.

Lieutenant Harold S. Wonson was at the piano. He is a graduate of Dartmouth and directed the show and was leading the music. Colonel Frank A. Graves asked him and the singers to put more of a ginger into the "Rahs" after the end the chorus, and then Colonel Graves said to the writer:

"Keeping the boys cheered up is a problem. We miss our wives and babies and those left behind on a Sunday, but officers cannot go round with long faces. This is M. T. C. bones here will be finished tomorrow. The boys, as you see, are using it today writing letters home. See the ink pots and pens all along the tables and the boys flipping it with sawdust that the ink bottles came in.

"Well, when I knew the boys trooping in here today I ordered our band to play. I wanted music to go with cheerful writing. When you have music you don't see homesick expressions and the homesickness doesn't get into the letters to the folks at home are not saddened. You see homesickness is only homesickness, it passes like the wind and the sand storms, but it hurts while it lasts and you've got to handle it so that the boys suffer from it if we can help it in our regiment.

DANCE IN Y. M. C. A.

"That's why I ordered a dance to be held in the Y. M. C. A. building Tuesday night. The Y. M. C. A. people didn't feel quite sure about dancing but they received us with open arms, my jurisdiction and I want dancing for the boys, and I told them so, and the Y. M. C. A. people have invited us to shook hands on the dance proposition.

"See that new band stand? Well, it is not a band stand at all. It's a stage and we're going to put a show on Tuesday night. We're going to have an open air vaudeville show. Wrestling and boxing bouts and sextettes and quartets, and the officers of the other regiments are to be invited and all our boys are welcome as the air and if we don't get Private Dooley there's no name isn't Graves.

"Our band played for the first time today. Knocked out the Poet and the Peasant like the Symphony Orchestra has a right to do with its forty-six musicians now. I bought up all the available band instruments in El Paso and the only bass horn Colonel Sherburne of the Artillery tried to buy for his outfit the band boys had every there before him. The others have got to wait but we've got our instruments.

"What of it if some of them are not the right key? We have them, anyway, and as options with the first right key instruments that come to hand, and with the band boys' options in game and responsibility to keep a regiment well and happy, and not homesick.

"Captain Butler of the hospital division of the Ninth Regiment said he treated a six-foster whose "sobs almost shook the ground," and his only ailment was homesickness, which passed in a short time. The mental side of camp life for 5,000 miles from home is due in a measure to the uncertainty of what will be done and how long the guardsmen will be kept on "watchful waiting" duty on the border.

GUARDS OF FIFTH WATCH FIRE IN JUAREZ

By P. D. GAMBELL.

El Paso, Tex., July 24.—Members of the Fifth Massachusetts companies stationed at Camp Cotton here gathered at the railroad tracks of the El Paso & Southwestern Railroad on the banks of the Rio Grande to watch a fire over in Juarez, across the river.

Evidently an oil tank had been set on fire, for the heavy black smoke hung like a pall over Juarez.

Later in the night considerable firing across the river from the Mexican side took place. The firing was the heaviest heard at this camp since the regiment has been here. For more days the shooting across the river by the Mexican outposts has been increasing in frequency and it is believed that the Carranzista forces in Juarez have been strengthened.

Preparations for a long stay are being made by the men of the regiment and tent floors and sides are being purchased with screens for the side doors of the tents. Electric lights have been installed throughout the regiment, and in the case of Company F of Waltham every room has a drop light.

The band went over to the cement works Sunday afternoon and gave a concert for the boys of Companies A and D and the machine gun company.

Wonson, leader of the regimental orderly section of the headquarters company was severely kicked in the knee by an outlaw horse at brigade headquarters and is now confined in the regimental hospital tent. Private Wood is a well known Boston newspaper artist.

R. I. Troopers Take Shots at Smugglers

By R. E. BAILEY.

El Paso, Tex., July 24—The Rhode Island Camp at Camp Pershing is hot and quiet. Several green pack mules were broken by a squad. Sunday, under Battle Sergeant Egleston, Troop B. There was much lively kicking, but no one was hurt.

Work of 8 Troop on provost guard went off smoothly under Lieutenant Chandler, of C Troop, and Sergeant Lingley of B Troop. Sergeant Maynard, B Troop, and ten men of the night mounted border patrol, were sent out Saturday evening.

El Paso reported a quiet evening except when Privates Ericson and Horwath each fired several shots at passing autos. The motor parties are believed to have been smugglers as they were escorted by Villa scouts and refused to stop when challenged. Both got away. Men in the patrol are somewhat nervous, but creditable work was reported.

Pay day on August 1 is eagerly looked forward to by men without funds. Major Richards has issued credit canteen books for their benefit.

Shower baths for the men were first used by the Rhode Island Cavalry Sunday night.

Battery A men have just broken in some of most vicious horses purchased by the government, according to an army officer. Captain Chafee of the battery working his men hard.

Captain Armington of the ambulance corps hopes to have his own mules tomorrow.

Drill with the regulars at Fort Bliss for the past week has proved efficient.

The question of provision for married men with dependents is still worrying officers here.

LARGE U. S. FLEET STARTS FOR DRILLS

Newport, R. I., July 24.—The largest fleet of warships ever rendezvoused in these waters left port early today for fleet drills off Block Island and Long Island Sound. The ships will return next Friday afternoon. After that the fleet will anchor in Narragansett Bay till August 7.

PEACE PROPAGANDA BY GERMAN SOCIETY

"A news agency called the 'Deutsche Nachrichten Verkehrs Gesellschaft' has been founded in Berlin. Its apparent object is to supply propaganda for the new German peace committee under Prince Charles von Wedel."

Girl Bather Is Forced to Flee from Alligator

White bathing in Whitman's Pond, East Weymouth, a Miss Looney of Jamaica Plain was attacked by an alligator. The animal grasped the skirt of Miss Looney's bathing suit and clung there until beaten off with an oar wielded by George A. Kemp, who, with Albert W. Edwards, went to the girl's rescue in a rowboat. Miss Looney was accompanied by Mary Hemingway, both guests at the Lake View Park House.

They were bathing 100 feet from the shore when suddenly Miss Looney felt a fin at her skirt. She screamed and Miss Hemingway went to her assistance. Their cries for help were heard on shore and Kemp and Edwards, the rescuers, hurried to the hotel, hurried to where they were struggling in the water.

Edwards helped Miss Looney over the side, while Kemp beat off the alligator.

William Mace, superintendent of the park aquarium, remained in the mystery of the presence of alligators in an inland pond. He said that they were pets of his and they answered to the names of "Tom and Jeddy."

He explained that they were suffering from the heat Saturday and that he had taken them from their usual habitat in the aquarium and placed them in an enclosure in the marshes bordering the pond. They must have escaped from the reservation and found their way to the bathing beach.

Seek $1,000,000 Silver Treasure in Sunken Ship

By International News Service.

Norfolk, Va., July 24.—The treasure hunting expedition of the Interocean Submarine Co. of New York will leave port today, weather being favorable, for a point a our fifty miles off the Cape Charles Light, where the steamship Merida went down four years ago with about $1,000,000 in silver bars and valuables on board. The expedition is in charge of George D. Stillson, an expert in submarine engineering.

Commander Stillson has thirty-five men in the expedition, including several of the best divers and submarine explorers in America. "We believe it will be easy to locate the Merida without sweeping apparatus," said Mr. Stillson. "We believe we are going to be successful not only in this undertaking but in several other prospects we have under consideration."

Castellane Gets Pope to Grant Gould Hearing

Rome, July 24.—On behalf of Count Boni de Castellane, his attorney in the suit before the Holy See for the annulment of his marriage with Anna Gould, has presented to the Pope new evidence which, according to the attorney, will prove that Miss Gould married Count de Castellane with the intention of divorcing him if later she became dissatisfied with the marriage bond.

This, according to canonical law, is sufficient to annual a Catholic marriage, the attorney says.

As matrimonial cases before the Holy See can always be resumed if fresh facts are brought forward, the Pope has decided to submit the case in a new aspect to the next commission of cardinals that examines into it previously and decided against an annulment.

The commission comprises Cardinals de Lai, Bisleti and Van Rossum.

BAY STATE BOYS OF 2ND TAKE MEXICAN

By S. T. MOORE.

Columbus, N. M., July 24. — How three Holyoke guardsmen, armed with only a pocket knife apiece, assisted in the capture of a suspicious Mexican wanted by the local authorities became known today.

Privates Joseph Greeley, John Lambert and George Greaney were the heroes of the capture, which occurred two days ago. Through their modesty the details of the story were not learned until today.

The three D Company soldiers were walking along the railroad tracks to the east of the camp after a souvenir expedition in the desert when a ragged "spigotty" fled by them pursued by a cavalry patrol.

UNARMED BUT PLUCKY.

"Catch him if you are armed," shouted the pursuers.

The three Holyoke boys were not armed, but they gave chase, finally capturing the Mexican in an open field. The prisoner was turned over to the cavalry man who escorted him to the "bull pen," where he is awaiting trial.

Protestant and Catholic services were conducted Sunday morning with the usual attendance.

The feet of every enlisted man have been inspected in the afternoon and despite the hard marches of the past week only a few cases of swollen trilbies were discovered.

Company D defeated Ambulance Company No. 3 in a baseball game, Sunday, 10 to 8. Urquhrt and Mahoney were the battery for Company D, and the Holyoke pitcher allowed but three hits.

CAPTAIN LOSES CHECK.

Captain George A. Roberts of K Company is mourning the loss of a check for $136. While cleaning up the captain's tent this morning an orderly consigned the envelope containing the check to the fire. It is believed that the check, which was from the government, will be refunded.

Recruits are now allowed to participate in the evening parade. They did creditably.

Three snakes were captured on the desert. Adams soldiers caught an eight-foot bull snake and Worcester and Holyoke men each caught two-foot diamond back rattlers.

The health of the regiment remains excellent. Pay day will be Tuesday, according to the latest announcement.

JOHN D. AND PASTOR CALL VILLA BLESSING

By International News Service.

Cleveland, O., July 24.—John D. Rockefeller agreed with the Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton of the Madison Avenue Baptist Church, New York, today Dr. Eaton declared in his sermon that anarchism is a beautiful theory, that Charles Darwin caused the European war, that the cannon of Europe were the voice of a second John the Baptist, and that Villa was a blessing.

"Fine," he told Dr. Eaton after the sermon, as he lunched at the former pastor to Forest Hill to dinner.

"It is Charles Darwin who is responsible for the ideas of evolution that have caused the supermen of Germany," said Dr. Eaton. "Darwin went on, "It is the law of the jungle and never intended for the human race."

HYANNIS EAGER FOR RETURN OF HEIRESS

Hyannis, July 24.—Hyannis is eagerly awaiting the return of Miss Marion Pomeroy Smith, who will reach here tomorrow for a hearing on the petition of Charles C. Paine as conservator of her estate in Massachusetts.

After a sensational legal fight in Hartford she freed her affairs from Paine's supervision in Connecticut, but she has considerable property in Massachusetts and is trying to gain the sanction of the court to handle it herself, or to have it placed in the hands of a trust company.

Hyannis was deeply stirred by the charges regarding Miss Smith's alleged friendship with certain prominent men of this place. The young woman is now in Boston in seclusion.

Her property in Connecticut is valued at $50,000.

Cardinal Gibbons Urges Army to Safeguard U. S.

Baltimore, July 24.—Cardinal Gibbons marked his eighty-second birthday, spent at Union Mills, Carroll County, by declaring for universal military training as the best possible thing for America.

He was in fine spirits and excellent health and expressed the opinion that military training would safeguard the nation, keep it at peace with the world, uphold its manhood and fuse its many foreign strains into one patriotic people.

"Order is the first law of Heaven," he said, "and order comes from authority and obedience."

Beauty and Tiny Tabby Start New Style at Harvard

She was a stunning brunette, with peachblow cheeks and laughing black eyes, and nestling close to her waist a snow-white kitten was cradled in her bended arm. With clearing skies the journeying from the Freshman dormitory section, where the fairest of Harvard's Summer School students are located, toward Harvard square. Her appearance created a sensation but she marched on entirely oblivious to the furore she and tabby created. It was the start of a new style at Harvard.

Then entered the reporter. The pussy, a half-pound of snowball loveliness, purred contentedly with half-closed eyes under his masculine stroke.

"What he, or—er-er-er—she got a name?" he queried, trying to be brave.

"Yes; Jess Willard," was the numerical reply, and the maid, kitten, et al., started a forward march.

"Just a minute," was the breathless request of the reporter. Then he added in what was supposed to be a cool tone, "And what might your name be, pray?"

Her answer came quickly.

"It might be Susie Smithers, but it isn't. Good-night and keep out of the wet."

And then the forward march started in earnest.

WILSON NOT TO PUSH CHILD LABOR BILL

Washington, July 24.—President Wilson will not try to force Congress to pass a child labor bill this session against the wishes of Democratic leaders. Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, after a conference at the White House with President Wilson, left at noon with the message for Congress. The President told Senator Simmons that he would abide by the decision of the Democratic caucus, to be held tomorrow night, concerning what action shall be taken at this session in regard to child labor.

TRUCKS INDICATE MOVE BY PERSHING

Columbus, N. M., July 24.—Preparation for a quick movement of General Pershing's entire column in Mexico is seen in the arrival here of new shipment of motor trucks and of a special train of truck drivers. Whether that movement will be back toward the United States border is a matter of keen speculation. Unofficial reports are that the new truck train units are to be kept at the advanced base.

TOO MANY MILITIA UNITS IN LAREDO

Washington, July 24.—Laredo, Tex., is so congested with National Guard troops that Major-General Tasker H. Bliss, assistant chief of staff of the army, who is inspecting the militia, has instructed General Funston to send some of the guardsmen to another camp.

At Laredo General Bliss inspected the first New Hampshire and part of the second Maine regiments of infantry.

El Paso, Tex., July 24—American cavalrymen, hurried to the border opposite Guadalupe, sixty miles southeast of here, today awaited orders that would send them into Mexico on a punitive expedition that would deal out justice with the swiftness of Major Langhorne's force.

In the hands of the Carranza commander at Guadaloupe, served with an ultimatum by General George Bell, Jr., rested the possibility that the ostentatiously cordial relations between the United States and Mexico would be thrown into a jumble once more.

By sunset today the comandante was ordered to return a herd of cattle run off the Reynolds ranch on the American side by Mexican outlaws. If the cattle are not returned by this time, General Bell is ready to give the commands that will send the American soldiers over the border.

BLAME CARRANZISTAS.

According to reports from the Reynolds ranch, which is just opposite Guadaloupe, the raiders were Carranzista soldiers. They made a swift raid, held the American rancher and his men back with rifles and rode off the stock. They paraded the cattle through the streets, proclaiming their prowess as raiders and boasting of victory over the Americans. Reynolds said that the Carranzista garrison made no effort to check this display or apprehend the thieves.

It was upon hearing this that General Bell sent the ultimatum to the Carranza commander. Two troops of American cavalry stationed at Fabens, twenty-eight miles southeast of here, were immediately ordered in readiness to move on Guadalupe.

Outside of the situation across from Guadalupe, the most significant news of the days was the report that General Jacinto Trevino, boasted instigator of the Carrizal battle, had been deposed as military governor at Chihuahua City.

This was especially important because a short time ago Trevino defied Minister of War Obregon in an effort to oust him. It was believed that Trevino was allied with the new Legalista party of Mexico.

HATES AMERICANS.

Of equal importance with the news of Trevino's recall is the report that General Luis Herrera, "wringhater," would succeed him. A fortnight ago Trevino threatened to have Herrera arrested for cowardice in running away from a battle with Villista forces at Parral.

Herrera and some of the Americans is known throughout Mexico. Either of these men, American troops were ambushed in that town. His lieutenant was killed during the fighting at that time.

Herrera at that time was supposed to have traveled against the Carranzista rather than to be attached to an army that was supposed to co-operate with the American punitive expedition. He did everything in his power to keep Pershing from entering in some mysterious way Villa was able to slip through Herrera's lines at will. This is shown in General Pershing's reports to General Funston.

"Pancho" Villa still is active along the Durango and Sinaloa line. Carranza officials say that this force was defeated and that Villa himself is fleeing. But reports reaching the border declare that Villa is gaining strength. Whatever Villa is doing, the Carranzista government has apparently adopted a new policy within the past few days. It was announced that all fighting, which was forbidden in one of Carranza's first decrees, will be resumed at Juarez next Sunday.

Revive Proposal for Neutral Zone.

By International News Service.

Washington, July 24.—Mexican developments today caused a revival of the proposal to establish a neutral zone extending twenty miles from the border on each side. State Department officials admitted that this plan again is under consideration. It would include disarming of civilians within its boundaries and provide for a large number of troops acting as police on each side.

The arrangement would permit troops of both sides to follow a "hot trail" anywhere in the zone.

"The shift of Carranzista commanders in the northern part of Mexico is largely responsible for reviving the neutral zone plan as General Herrera, who succeeds Trevino in the North, has been noted for his anti-American sympathies.

To all inquiries as to the status of the plans being arranged by Acting Secretary of State Polk and Mexican Ambassador Designate Arredondo, the State Department merely reports: "Satisfactory progress."

War Department officials insist that any change of policy in regard to the National Guard troops now on the border must come from the State Department. At the State Department it was said there was no contemplation of advising the withdrawal of any troops until a definite understanding with the de facto authorities of Mexico has been reached.

DEUTSCHLAND DYES FOR SALE HERE

The dyes brought to this country on the German merchant submarine Deutschland are being offered for sale to New England mills. Information as to the amount and nature of the dyes has become public.

The Deutschland brought 280 tons of dyes, enormously concentrated, so that they will make about 3,000 tons of working color, or about 20 per cent. of a full month's consumption in normal times. Under present conditions, this amount of dye will supply the market for weeks.

Most of the colors are for wool, a few for cotton.

The Germans did not attempt to charge exorbitant profits on the dyes. Where they sell in this country, they are $15 to $18 per pound on certain colors, they sold their product at $12.50, below the market price, but not low enough to injure those who have bought at the higher figure.

Doctor Tells How To Strengthen Eyesight 50 per cent In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye troubles? If so, you will be glad to know that, according to Dr. Lewis, there is real hope for you. Many who have been wearing say they have had their eyes restored to such a degree of strength by a careful free prescription. One man says after trying it: "I was almost blind, could not see to read at all. Now I can read common print without glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully, now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses. It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any druggist and get a few tablets of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a glass of water and let it dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two or three times daily. You should notice your eyes clear brighter almost right away. Inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are badly strained, this takes a few steps to save them now before it is too late. Many running eyes, sore eyes, weak eyes will be saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician in writing about above article was enthusiastic and said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituents are well known to me and are perfectly harmless. I have no hesitation in recommending it to my readers, as I feel confident that it will do all that is claimed for it. In many instances it will be found unnecessary to wear glasses any longer, and in most cases it will greatly relieve eye strain. In order to make this offer as liberal as possible, I have arranged with the manufacturers to supply readers of this paper with a full sized $1.00 package, and I feel sure that all who use it as directed will be more than pleased with the results. In case you cannot obtain Bon-Opto tablets from your druggist, they will be sent direct to you, postage prepaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per package. Bon-Opto is sold by all Liggett-Jaynes-Bureau.

PARTNER OF DR. ADAMS TELLS OF ROMANCE

held by Dr. Campbell in the case came through a man on intimate terms with all the principle figures in the "Triangle Tragedy." He said:

"Miss Campbell is positively of the opinion that her former partner met death other than by suicide.

ALMOST POSITIVE.

"She is almost or positive that she met death at the hands of a man who is known slightly to me, who is said to have been desperately jealous over her, and who has been attentive to her for several years at least.

"In fact, the great wonder is that his name has not already been associated with this crime.

"Of course this theory may prove absolutely wrong. His alibi may be perfectly complete. But at any rate the police evidently attach great importance to her testimony, for they have called her to discuss the case with no one other than those directly associated with the case.

"Miss Campbell has always been of my opinion in the case—that everything pointed to the fact of murder and not suicide. You must bear in mind the fact that when found Miss Adams was found lying prone upon the floor, her upper her back, her feet barely over the doorsill leading into her reception room.

"Now, as this was in the direction toward the hall and the telephone, it would appear as though she had endeavored to reach aid and had been overtaken with a fainting spell while trying to reach the door.

Dr. Campbell has also revealed to the police an old love tangle in Dr. Adams' life.

She also told the police the circumstances of the intimacy between Dr Eldridge D. Atwood, who shot Dr. Harris, and Dr. Adams.

She told the police that Dr. Adams was engaged to a Dr. Sheid in Seattle several years ago.

He later fell from a building and was killed, and the tragic end of her romance left the young woman permanently saddened, Dr. Campbell said.

BECAME NERVOUS.

The fact that Dr. Atwood and Dr. Adams were much together was distasteful to her family on account of the difference in their ages, Dr. Campbell said. As a result, Dr. Adams brooded, became extremely nervous and threw herself into her work so sternly that she drove herself into a frame of mind where she contemplated suicide.

This statement by Dr. Campbell, however, was closely followed by the statement of Winthrop Adams, brother of the dead girl, that he was not satisfied his sister was a suicide.

As a result, the police investigation became more rigorous today, and they widened their search for the source of the poison which caused Dr. Adams' death.

Interest increased today in the letters written by Dr. Harris after he was shot and before he was taken to the hospital. These letters will be one of the subjects of questioning Dr Harris when the police take a statement from him.

AWAIT DEVELOPMENTS.

No effort will be made to take that statement until he recovers, or until he becomes so ill that his death seems imminent.

Though some of the investigators incline to the suicide theory, most of them regard the case as one of possible murder, and for this reason they will not give up their investigations until they have done everything humanly possible to clear up all the perplex of the case.

These investigators say that it is not likely that Dr. Adams, who knew all about poisons, would take mercury to end her life, because she must have known of the slow and torturing death that comes by mercury poisoning.

These investigators say they would prefer the accidental poisoning theory to one of suicide.

The Adams family also disbelieves the statements made by Dr. Atwood to the police following his arrest and his explanation that he attacked Dr. Harris because the latter betrayed Dr. Adams.

Medical Examiner George H. Magrath announced that he would conduct an inquest into the death of Dr. Adams. The inquest will take place either in Brookline or Boston.

Letters found in the offices of Dr. Harris at the Hotel Westminster have been carefully examined by Captain Goode of station 16, but the latter is unwilling to give any information regarding their contents.

WITHHOLDS CONTENTS.

Police Captain Goode said today:

"I still have the package of letters found in Dr. Harris' office after the shooting and am keeping them here until the case comes to trial. Until that time, it would be unfair to both sides of the case to publish the contents of any of the letters.

"Atwood's case comes up in the Municipal Court at the end of this week. His counsel may waive examination and the case will then go before the Grand Jury the week of August 7.

"Until that time I shall continue to hold the letters here in the safe and their contents will not be revealed by me for publication."

Captain Goode refused to intimate in any way what bearing the letters have on the triangle mystery.

Dr. Atwood is still at the Charles Street Jail. His senior counsel, George W. Bean of Woburn, said:

"We all hope that Dr. Harris will survive. Dr. Atwood himself wishes it."

Attorney Bean said that the young man told his entire story to the police, and that every word was, as he believed, true.

Brookline Girl Back After Thrilling Night Adritt in Small Boat

PHOTOGRAPH BY CHAMPLAIN STUDIOS

Miss Cherry Head, Brookline beauty, who was one of the yachting party wrecked off Rye Beach, N. H.

Miss Cherry Head of No. 25 Abbotsford road, Brookline, who was rescued by United States coast guards, after the yacht Sehura, on which she was a guest, ran ashore off Rye Beach, N. H., returned to Boston today by train.

Other members of the party were: J. H. Wilkins, the owner of the boat, of Baltimore and Marblehead; Mrs. Wilkins, C. E. Conway of Lynn and J. W. Scott of Boston, the skipper.

Drifting all night in an open boat was the experience of the members of the party. The Sehura struck on Penn Ledge, three-quarters of a mile off the United States coast guard station.

They were found by Captain Wells of the coast guard and a volunteer crew.

The yacht, the Sehura, was bound from Marblehead to Portsmouth.

After several mishaps the yacht ran on Penn Ledge. Part of her keel was ripped away forward and she took a bad list to port.

The yacht was pounding heavily on the rocks of the ledge and it was decided that the safest course would be to take to the boat. The four passengers, together with J. W. Scott of Boston, skipper and engineer of the yacht, lowered their tender and drifted away.

With no certain idea of the condition of the coast at that point the five were tossed about in the rough water for about seven hours until they were discovered by the life-saving crew.

CARMEN SETTLE CONTROVERSY IN HAVERHILL

Haverhill, July 24.—The possibility of a strike among the railroad men of the Massachusetts Northeastern Street Railway Company has passed, following conferences here today by members of the executive committee of the Carmen's Union with officials of the railroad.

The trouble, which arose out of the discharge of Edward Hatley, a spare motorman of the road, has been adjusted. Hatley was charged with not stopping at a crossing and was discharged.

Under an agreement between the road and the men, no employe who has been worked on the road less than six months can be the subject of any controversy between the union and the road, and the settlement of the case remains with David Belden, president of the road.

Hatley had been in the employ of the road less than six months, but meetings were held by the men to fort out the sentiment in his case. The road held to their agreement and refused to recede from their attitude and reinstate Hatley.

PASTOR SUES PARISHIONER FOR $25,000

The Rev. Frederick W. Buis, formerly pastor of the First Baptist Church of Salem, today filed a suit for $25,000 in the Essex County Superior Court, against Leroy B. Philbrick of Salem, a prominent member of the church.

The filing of papers forms another chapter in one of the most interesting church rows Salem has ever known. They have undergood to have been entered because of statements alleged to have been made by the defendant which the plaintiff claims are derogatory.

Trouble has been brewing in the First Baptist Church for some time. Because of this condition of affairs, Mr. Buis tendered his resignation some three months ago. At that time it is understood that the parish refused to accept the resignation.

Within the last few weeks Mr. Buis again insisted that he be given the privilege of resigning his charge, in spite of the fact that the majority of the parishioners are said to be in sympathy with him.

The defendant, Leroy B. Philbrick, is a prominent Salem merchant and is active in the church.

In a statement today he said that at a recent meeting of the State Baptist Association the members voted that Mr. Buis be advised to resign his charge in the interests of harmony. At that time it was alleged that certain indiscreet statements had been made by the minister.

Many sensations are expected if the case comes up for trial, which in any case will not be until the Fall.

ROCKINGHAM PARK CUT INTO LOTS

Haverhill, July 24. — Rockingham Park at Salem, N. H., famous for more than a decade, will soon be a matter of history. For the past few weeks men have been engaged removing the fixtures from the grandstand.

Portions of the great park have been cut up into house lots, and a part of the ground is to be made into a picnic field.

The cutting up of the park and the sale of the fixtures is being done under the orders of Edward F. Searles, the millionaire Methuen owner of the property. The Rockingham Park, a mecca for horse lovers all over New England, will not be held this year.

Rockingham Park was built about fifteen years ago by a group of New York sportsmen, who intended to conduct horse racing for gambling purposes. A committee of twelve New Hampshire citizens, headed by the Rev. Thomas Chalmers of Manchester, N. H., fought vigorously and successfully against the bookmakers.

For a few years it remained idle, but for the past few years the Rockingham Park has been held, attracting visitors from all over New England.

Because of insistent appeals hundreds of children, who wished to gaze on the poet whom they loved, Governor Ralston arranged for the body to lie in State in the Capitol this afternoon and evening.

The granting of the request of the public for a view of his body will be the only departure from the simplicity of the funeral. Quiet Lockerbie street, where the poet lived during the height of his literary fame, was never so quiet as today.

A movement was started today to make Riley Day, October 7, a State holiday.

JAIL SOUTH BOSTON MAN AS ASSAILANT

By International News Service.

Washington, July 24.

PRESIDENT WILSON today paid high tribute to James Whitcomb Riley, the "Hoosier Poet," who died Saturday. In a letter to Henry Eitel of Indianapolis, brother-in-law of the poet, the President declared.

"A notable figure passes out of the nation's life."

His letter follows:

May I not express to you my sincere sorrow at the death of James Whitcomb Riley.

With his departure a notable figure passes out of the nation's life; a man who imparted joyful pleasure and a thoughtful view of many things that other men would have missed. I am sure I am speaking the feeling of the whole country in expressing my own sense of loss.

WOODROW WILSON.

SLEEPING CARS IN FUTURE FOR GUARDSMEN

In the future Massachusetts rookies bound for the border will be spared the stiff necks and cramped muscles incident to sleeping curled up in the incommodious seat of a passenger car, thanks to the efforts of Governor McCall and Adjutant-General Cole. Tourist cars will be furnished by the War Department.

General Cole received the following communication from Colonel J. B. Bellinger of the quartermaster's corps of the Eastern department:

"Referring to previous communications respecting the procedure to be followed by camp quartermasters in obtaining tourist sleepers necessary to move troops to the Mexican border, the quartermaster-General informs these headquarters that tourist sleepers will be furnished all organizations that are still to be moved, but his office must have seventy-two hours advance notice in order to insure tourist sleepers being at the starting point before troops move forward."

This information will be received with enthusiasm by the men at the border, General Cole says, inasmuch as they have experienced several nights in a passenger coach and realize the difficulty a six-foot man has in reclining on a four-foot seat. The Bay State boys will be glad to know that there are prospects of comfortable sleep on the return journey.

SULLIVAN CALLS POLICEMAN A 'BIG HULK'

"You're a big hulk, dressed in a uniform of blue, with a nickel plate on your breast," said Attorney E. Mark Sullivan in the Somerville Police Court today to Policeman Charles S. Johnson, on the beat at Daniel S. Linehan, seventeen, of No. 11 Charles street, Somerville, before Associate Justice Butler on a charge of trespassing on the tracks of the Boston & Maine road at Prospect Hill.

Attorney Sullivan later referred to Johnson as a "pretty fly cop."

Judge Butler, at request of Johnson, objected to the characterization.

Johnson told the court young Linehan assaulted him, causing Attorney Sullivan to refer to the height and weight of the former as against the defendant.

Linehan was found guilty and fined $5. He appealed. Attorney Sullivan said he would later ask for a warrant for the arrest of Johnson on the charge of assaulting his client.

CHILD BURNED AS BROTHER LIES DEAD

While the body of her brother, William, four, lay in the parlor, the victim of pneumonia, Mary Mulvie, six, was probably fatally burned at her home, No. 849 Harrison avenue, South End, today. They are the children of Mrs. Delia Mulvie, a widow.

William was stricken with pneumonia last week. He died Saturday at the City Hospital. The funeral was held this afternoon. The mother was sitting by the casket of her boy when she heard the screams of a child. Running to the kitchen she saw Mary with her clothing ablaze.

Mrs. Mulvie smothered the flames as best she could and cried for help. Ellen Donovan, who lives on the second floor, heard her cries and ran to the East Dedham street Police Station, a short distance away, where she told her story to Captain Driscoll.

William Hazelett in the police ambulance rushed the child to the City Hospital. There, her name was placed on the dangerous list.

THINK MICHIGAN MAN KILLED HIS FAMILY

Lake Forest, Ill., July 24.—The police so far have failed to establish the identity of the man, woman and child found shot to death along a bridlepath from the Onwentsia Club, but it is thought the man may be Lloyd A. Cragin, of Flint, Michigan. The bodies were found by Miss Marjorie C. Minto, and her guest, Miss Isabelle Hurrill, of Geneva, N. Y. Evidently the man had killed his wife and child and then himself.

HURLEY IS WILLED HOME BY WOMAN

89 NEW INFANT PLAGUE CASES IN NEW YORK

By International News Service.

New York, July 24.—Infantile paralysis cases in Greater New York almost reached the 3,000 mark today. The new cases reported during the twenty-four hours ending at 10 a. m. numbered eighty-nine, making a grand total of 2,915.

Today's list contained twenty-six less names than yesterday's, but this was attributed to the fact that epidemic cases reported on Mondays and Tuesdays generally show a decrease.

The additional deaths reported numbered thirty-one, as compared with twenty-three yesterday. The deaths increased in three of the five boroughs and showed a decrease of only one in each of the other two. The total of deaths to date is 689, the rate continuing to hold above 20 per cent.

Quarantine regulations by suburban towns against New York's little ones are increasing in severity. It was estimated today that fully 100,000 little ones, who would otherwise have enjoyed fresh country air on Sunday, were compelled to stay in the city's stifling heat. Hundreds of families that tried to leave the city for a Sabbath outing were turned back.

Health department clinics for private physicians will be opened at various points in the city tonight. All the information that the department has secured will be placed at the disposal of the physicians to aid them in combatting the plague.

Weather Change Will Aid Epidemic.

By International News Service.

Washington, July 24.—Federal officials continue to be alarmed over the developments in the infantile paralysis epidemic in and about New York city. The fact that the physicians of the service and those of the New York health department are meeting with determined opposition from parents, who object to the removal of patients to hospitals, and from health officers of cities and towns throughout the country, who ignore public health service certificates, is a serious complication.

The number of cases fluctuates from day to day, and officials say that until there is a decided change in the weather all over the East it will be impossible to make any claims that the disease is under control.

The chief encouraging factor, so far as the public health service is concerned, is that the spread of the disease throughout the country seems to have been checked.

$6,000 REWARD FOR BOMB THROWER

San Francisco, July 24.—Under the pressure of public sentiment, which has been aroused over the bomb explosion that marked Saturday's preparedness parade here, the authorities today are working with determination to apprehend the perpetrator of the deed.

To the death toll of six it is expected that two and probably more of the 44 injured will be added, five of the victims being reported in a critical condition.

Led by Mayor Rolph, who has offered a reward of $5,000 for the arrest of the person, and who is taking an active part in the search, scores of citizens have volunteered their services for personal aid.

A mass meeting to express an opinion on the bomb outrage was called today for July 26 by Frederick J. Koster, president of the Chamber of Commerce and chairman of the committee on law and order, which was appointed recently to deal with the longshoremen strike situation.

EXPECT STATE REWARD.

As a result of conferences between Mayor Rolph and Governor Hiram A. Johnson, it is regarded as likely that the State will supplement the city's action with the offer of a large reward for the assassin.

A reward has been offered by the brother of one of the victims.

Experts retained by the police have arrived at the conclusion, it is said, that the bomb had as its principal ingredient nitro-toluol.

This substance, they say, was compressed into a length of cast steel pipe, which, judging from the fragments picked up in the area of destruction, must have been from a foot to 15 inches long and from six to eight inches in diameter. Such a bomb, it is stated, could have been fired by a time arrangements affixed to an ordinary alarm clock.

An entirely new angle to the case was presented to the police by Dr. J. Mora Moss, who said that the explosive either was tossed into the crowd or dropped from the top of a one-story building at Market and Steuart streets.

SAW BOMB FALL.

Dr. Moss said he was in Stewart street at the time, forming in line with the Sons of the American Revolution and observed the bomb falling to the street. He said:

"I happened to turn and saw a black object, surrounded by smoke, among the crowd, and the explosion followed. I am sure that the story that that suitcase was placed against the corner building is incorrect."

Frank F. Josefson, the sailor who was arrested Saturday when he made a speech at the scene of the explosion in approval of the act, is still in custody.

Souvenir hunters have picked up blocks from the sidewalk of the explosion at Stewart and Market streets, additional bits of glass, marble, pipe, rocks and nails which, with the bomb, formed the contents of the deadly suitcase. Sure were found on buildings, some of which were blown away, which were made by flying missiles.

Civil War veteran, died Saturday night of their injuries.

Several tales were told the police that may lead to the arrest of the guilty persons or persons. M. P. T. Pendergast of Oakland said he saw two men leave a black suitcase at the scene of the explosion a few minutes before the disaster. He was within eight feet of the bomb.

Mrs. K. C. Compton of Chicago, who was watching the parade from a hotel window across the street from the fatal corner, said she saw a man on the roof of a nearby building intently watching the corner a few minutes before the explosion.

CURLEY PROBES WRECKING OF A. O. H. HARP

Mayor Curley today started an investigation in an effort to discover the vandal who wrecked the floral harp which has been on exhibition in the Public Garden near the Commonwealth avenue entrance. The Mayor has asked the police of the Back Bay station to assist him in his probe.

The giant harp was erected to honor the members of the A. O. H. at their big convention here. The letters "A. O. H." were made in the design. Each of the letters was kicked out of position.

Footprints showed that the maliciously inclined person had started at the top of the harp, carefully kicking out the foliage of the frame. He left the job unfinished, however, being frightened away, perhaps, and he might easily have planted his foot squarely on the "H," in jumping out of the garden plot, for one foot is apparently all that trampled that letter of the design.

WILL RESTORE DESIGN.

Mayor Curley said:

"I understand from Mr. Dillon that the Park Department planned to leave the design until August 15, which is the end of the season. I have instructed him to restore the design at once and to station a watchman there night and day, if necessary, to protect it.

"The harp was put there as a decoration, and there it is going to stay until the Park Department sees fit to remove it.

"Action against the miscreant who tried to wreck it I shall leave to the police. Such a vandal should be prosecuted, the more as it is the first instance of desecration of any floral piece in the Public Garden or vandalism of that character.

"Next year when the Elks and the O. A. H. meet here, we shall have their emblems set out in flowers, too, and as with any other organization that meets here. They are entitled to such courtesy from the city, and they shall get it without discrimination."

DILLON ATTACKS VANDAL.

"Vandalism pure and simple," was the way John H. Dillon, Commissioner of the Park and Recreation Department, characterized the destruction.

"I believe it was done by some irresponsible person or persons," he said. "But it is unfortunate that such things will occur in Boston in 1916. Do anything about it? Why, what can one do but regret it—although I wish that the vandal could be found and made an example of."

The harp was meant in honor of the A. O. H. convention. Mr. Dillon says that delegates to that convention from the West and the Middle West, where such floral work is more common than here, told him it was the finest thing of its kind they had ever seen.

The plants that went to its composition were echeveria, of whitish color; alternanthera, with green and red-gold foliage; the bluish kleinia, the golden pachythrima, haworthia, a sort of small cactus, and white seedum.

Mr. Dillon drew the design and it took his workmen almost a week to complete it.

HOBOES JOIN IN BIRTH CONTROL SUPPORT

Society women and wives of Harvard professors are one afoot in their support of the birth-control movement which won for Van Kleeck Allison last week a three-year prison sentence at the hands of Judge Murray. They have been joined by the International Brotherhood of Hoboes, in convention in Boston. The hoboes refused to let Allison address them, although he was present and wanted to speak.

The conservative element in the meeting prevailed, however, for it was pointed out that birth control was a subject in which hoboes were only academically interested, as most of them didn't even have a sweetheart, and until reforms were brought about in the world that would remedy this condition, hoboes had no business to go on record on such a problem.

DEFENCE OF MURRAY.

A motion to condemn Judge Murray precipitated the discussion. David Goldstein jumped to the defence of Judge Murray, who, he said, was obeying the laws of Massachusetts, which Allison had broken. He had been present in court during the trial and he thought the young man deserved all he got, as such information as he had been disseminating was both illegal and contrary to the teachings of Christianity. John F. Nason, chairman of the meeting, thought the incident a menace to free speech.

When the excitement was at its height a woman calmed the troubled hoboes. This was Cora D. Harvey, international secretary, who said that whereas she did not believe in the principle of birth control, she did not see how understand why the subject should be introduced at such a meeting. It was irrelevant.

Then the most famous hobo of them all Dr. J. Eads How of St. Louis, international president known as the "millionaire hobo," moved that the motion be tabled. He recognized, however, that there was an economic side to the question, as students had long ago concluded, and that as it had been discussed by the prophets there was a religious side to it, but as hoboes were not ment of conjugal interests the matter was irrelevant and had best be tabled. His logic prevailed.

EDUCATION DISCUSSED.

Other subjects of interest to hoboes had been discussed at the meeting by Dr. How, Miss Harvey and Theodore W. Curtis, also of St. Louis. Perhaps most vital was the subject of education. Dr. How suggested that a hobo college be started in Boston, owing to the wholly inadequate character of the colleges and universities in this section of the country. He said that a hobo college had recently been started in Chicago, and was in a flourishing condition. There Western hoboes, who had the time and the information, were studying to profit and advantage. The Boston society is being taught the sound doctrine that competition was not the life, but the th of trade. The society is proud that the captains of industry had recognized this principle long ago, but the economists of the regular colleges still persisted in teaching the old doctrines.

While answering the call of a playmate, six-year-old John Hollywood of Breed street, East Boston, fell from the veranda of his home, a distance of thirty-five feet, receiving a fracture of the skull. The boy had passed too far over the railing and fell three floors from the Hollywood flat to the ground. He was taken in an ambulance to the East Boston Relief Hospital, where his name was placed on the dangerous list.

BANK CASHIER A SUICIDE FROM OVERWORK

Great Barrington, July 24.—Assistant Cashier Clarence E. Culver, forty, shot himself at the Mahawie National Bank here and was found dying by the policeman on the beat, who had burst in the door, declared that overwork and worry were responsible for his act.

A few minutes before the shooting Culver spoke to a passing friend on the street. One of the bank's revolvers was used by Culver, and, although the shot lodged almost directly over his heart, he lived nearly twenty minutes.

With the resignation of Ex-President Frederick M. Deland, four weeks ago, and the retirement of Cashier Charles E. Booth, due to paralysis, a great portion of the bank's work fell upon Culver, who had been with the institution twenty-three years.

At a directors' meeting it was stated that the accounts of the bank were in perfect shape and that this had been recently certified to by a national bank examiner.

Culver was a vestryman of St. James' Episcopal Church and a member of the church choir. He was past master of Cincinnatus Lodge of Masons and treasurer of St. James' Club of Great Barrington.

He married a Miss Sadie Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. Robinson of Great Barrington and resided on South Main street. There were no children.

LABOR PREPARES FOR ITS BIGGEST PARADE

Organized labor plans to show its strength and how it is prepared for whatever may happen by a great outpouring in the Labor Day parade. Harry Jennings, president of the Boston Central Labor Union and chief marshal of the parade, has received official assurances of representatives of a number of Boston trade unions that the parade will be the largest in the history of the city.

Indications point that not only will all the unions of Boston be in line, but that a large number from outside Greater Boston will participate. The number of decorated floats and other features will be far ahead of other years. The Theatrical Stage Employes and Teamsters' Union are the latest to promise to take part.

Cardinal Merry del Val, an archpriest of St. Peters, formally inspected the coffin and found that while the wooden shell discloses a split some centimetres in extent, the inner zinc receptacle was intact. The ceremony lasted a quarter of an hour.

PROGRESSIVES SLOW IN WILSON SUPPORT

By International News Service.

Washington, July 24.—The hesitancy of several prominent Progressives to announce their support of President Wilson is delaying the opening of the Democratic national campaign. These Progressives, it is said, are waiting to hear President Wilson's speech of acceptance at the formal notification ceremonies.

Democratic leaders hope to have the Progressive party well represented on the national executive committee. Raymond Robins of Chicago, who was chairman of the Progressive National Committee is said to have been invited to serve. Representative William Kent, Independent, of California, also has been offered a place. President Wilson's insistance upon the passage of the child labor bill is designed, in part, to show the Progressives that he is in hearty accord with their aims.

Braves Rattling Home

Club Expects to Climb

Buffalo, July 24.—The Braves passed through here shortly after noon today bound for home after a Western trip of about three weeks, during the course of which they took ten of the sixteen games played. The ride from St. Louis, which started at 5.45 last night, has been hot and tiring thus far.

In two sleepers the boys have spent most of their time and aside from the minutes actually spent in the dining car, or in going to and from the park, have been in fatigue uniform. That is, clothing has been exceptionally scarce. That they might make an early start from St. Louis this week awaiting the end of the game and a hurried trip made to the depot.

THE INTENSE HEAT.

"Don't think for a minute," said Stallings this morning," that I am belittling the opposition we had during the past week when I say the weather beat us. Both Cincinnati and St. Louis have good ball clubs, but I don't think the outfits measure up to ours. It was the intense heat of both cities that effected the members of our club.

"Night after night the boys spent most of their time awake. They couldn't sleep under the conditions that existed. Consequently they went out to the ball parks each day in a rather exhausted condition. I am satisfied with the way things have gone.

"We won a majority of the games played and come home in first-class condition. If the club continues as well as it has been going on the road there is no reason to prevent us taking the lead shortly. We start our next road trip with four games in Brooklyn and something should happen at that time if it hasn't already happened when we reach there."

Yesterday's win left the Braves still in second position, though the Phillies win their game at Cincinnati. Philadelphia has a chance to go by them today inasmuch as the Patmenare are playing in Pittsburgh while the Braves are travelling. However the Boston nine, as the Pirates will win and consequently they don't worry about dropping out of place.

RUDOLPH IN 1914 FORM.

Dick Rudolph showed superb form in yesterday's contest. For a stretch of several weeks this season the little right-hander was not on edge, but in his series with the Cardinals he won two games, the first and the last, and in the eighteen innings allowed but two runs, proving that Dick's good right arm is itself again.

RUDOLPH BACK IN TRIM.

Stallings can use Rudolph just as he did in 1914. The Braves' manager is very sweet on Barnes and Ragan, though both right-handers were harshly treated here. Hughes showed splendid form, while Reulbach was kept in the stable.

As for left-handers, Stallings claims he has the best trio in the National League in Eyler, Nehf and Allen. They are ready for the Cubs and out to regain the second place they had with the Chicagoans when the Braves were rolling on the Tinker entry early on the trip.

The Braves trimmed Southnaw Bob Steele in winning from the Cardinals. They were presented with one of their runs.

SYNOPSIS OF ENCOUNTER.

Singles by Bescher and Long and Miller's sacrifice fly gave the Cardinals a tally in the first inning, and they held this lead to the fourth, when Magee went around to third on a wild throw by Hornsby and scored on Betchey's sacrifice fly.

In the eighth Wilhoit hit one past Wilson and completed the circuit for a home run by making a brilliant slide around Gonzales. The Kid's great drive proved the winning punch in the stiffly contested matinee.

The score left for home right after the game. They open Tuesday against the Cubs. The Cubs have come back to life after drifting around in the second division all Summer, and will be seen trying hard plucking for the clan of stallings.

NICK CARTER NEW CHICAGO HURLER

Indianapolis, July 24.—Pitcher Nick Carter of the Indianapolis Association club, will be sent to the Chicago Nationals, according to an announcement made by James C. Mcrill, president of the local club. President Mcrill just returned from Chicago, where he completed a deal for the pitcher's services.

The price to be paid for Carter is said to be in the thousands, and the deal will bring two players to Indianapolis in addition to the money consideration. Carter will not be sent to the Cubs until later, it is said, but must be delivered by August 25.

Carter has had a right-handed year. His record this season is good. Four big league clubs have been bidding for him.

DR. WITHINGTON IS VISITING IN BOSTON

Dr. Paul Withington, new football coach of the University of Wisconsin, is back in Boston on a visit. Together with Ernest W. Soucy, Harvard end last season, and John W. Doherty, one of the Crimson quarterbacks, Dr. Withington will leave for Madison the second week in September.

Dr. Withington intends locating in Madison, and, starting next year, will probably be director at the University of Wisconsin, schooled under the Haughton system, and himself famed as a line coach and football expert. Besides this he has the full-blooded knowledge of rowing, having been a member of Harvard's winning crews, and also knows track athletics thoroughly.

JOE WOOD DOWN TO REPORT TOMORROW

Toronto, July 24.—The Red Sox play an exhibition game here today and then leave for Cleveland, where they open their second Western tour tomorrow. Manager Carrigan stated this morning he was looking for Joe Wood to welcome him in the Forest City. Red Sox slugger seems well pleased to learn that the veteran right-hander is back in harness after his long rest.

Hooper, Agnew, Cady, Scott and all the pitchers save Pennock and Wyckoff, left for Cleveland from Syracuse, where the Red Sox played yesterday.

Cricket Notes

It did not require much of an effort for the Wissahickon Cricketers to defeat St. Georges, who were without the services of five of their first string men, including Captain Bottomley.

* * *

CONGRESSMAN CARTER of Needham filled in very nicely for the Needham Club, and had little trouble in scoring his twelve. Every chance he gets for a vacation the Congressman puts in before the wickets.

* * *

MURRAY of Everett played a wonderful inning for 24 not out, going in first to bat and lasting the inning through on a tricky wicket, notwithstanding the good bowling of E. Gorse and Warren.

* * *

ALCOCK of the United Shoes Whites was instrumental in saving his team from defeat, making 27 of the 45 runs scored, which incidentally is the smallest score put up the champions this season.

* * *

THE champion United Shoe team is in a batting slump. During the past three weeks, it has not scored 200 runs, but its bowlers have generally come to the rescue, thus staving off defeat when it seemed inevitable.

* * *

BROCKTON by losing to Canton, while Needham defeated Everett, is now tied for second position with Needham, having 16 points each, four leaving the United Shoe in first position, breaking a tie.

* * *

E. B. REECE of Needham leads the league in batting with an average of 20 for 10 innings and high score of 38. Murray, the champion batsman of last year, has jumped into second position from eighteenth two weeks ago with an average of 23 in 4 completed innings, and high score of 81.

Without "Mac" Crack Team May Win Series

New York, July 24.—There is a great deal of speculation relative to what chances the East will have in the international tennis matches with the West, which will be played on the turf courts of the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills on Friday, August 4, and Saturday, August 5. Last year there were two series, one in California, won by the Pacific Coast team, and one at Forest Hills, won by the Eastern squad.

The fact that McLoughlin probably will stay out of the intersectional matches gives the Eastern contingent more hope. But even should McLoughlin stick to his resolution of not playing until the national championship there is some doubt as to what the Eastern team can do against a team composed of William M. Johnston, national champion in singles and doubles; Ville E. Davis, national clay court champion; Clarence J. Griffin, Ward Dawson, Leland Roberts and H. Van Dyke.

What the personnel of the Eastern team will be is still a matter of doubt, but the play of the men in Longwood this week will go a long way to decide it. The most promising candidates for positions on the team are Richard Williams, 2d, Karl B. Behr, Theodore Pell, George M. Church, William A. Clothier, Watson M. Washburn, Fred R. Alexander, Nathaniel W. Niles and Walter Merrill Hall. Dean Mathey is at Plattsburg trying his hand at soldiering, and hence could not play if picked.

MANY ENTRIES IN GAME

The Charlestowns, Trimos, Lynn Hills, Cuban Sunderland, Boston AMERICANS, St. George A. A. and Prospect Unions have entered the soccer competition at the English field day and picnic, at Caledonian Grove, Saturday. W. Finch, winner of the 100-yard dash at the Scottish games, W. Murphy, R. Johnson and F. Spooner of Fore Rivers are among the athletes who will compete in the dash events.

GIRLS IN SECOND ROUND.

Miss Ruth Wise and Miss Jane McGovern, both of Cleveland, O., are generally favored to win honors in the Harvard Silver Golf Cup tennis tournament. Play in the second round is set for today. Both young ladies showed splendid form in the preliminary round.

GORDON LEADS MILE RACE

New York, July 24.—Willie Gordon of the New York A. Ward Dawson, Los Angeles, vs. William Rosenbaum, New York.

An exceptionally high class field of tennis stars will compete in the twenty-sixth annual singles tournament of the Longwood Cricket Club, in the grass courts at Longwood, which gets under way today.

Several California stars, including William M. Johnston, the national singles champion, are entrants. Japan's two best players, K. Kumagae and H. Mikami, are also in the field of starters.

M. G. S. Rea, an East Indian, who is studying at Cambridge, and the Harvard and Yale intercholastic champions, H. C. Harrison of Montclair, N. J., and C. S. Garland of Pittsburgh, are additional prominent contestants.

There is considerable interest attached to the visit of the two Japanese players, and their tennis will be put to the acid test at Longwood. Kumagae is the greatest player in Japan. He is twenty-four years old and was graduated last Spring from Keio University.

Kumagae wears glasses. He's a man of iron, although he doesn't look it. He says he will return to Japan in the Fall and become a banker.

Mikami is a graduate of the University of Waseda and shines as a doubles player.

The draw brings Kumagae and Nathaniel Niles into competition in the second round providing they win their matches.

Both William M. Johnston and R. Norris Williams, 2d, present and former national champion, respectively, have been practicing at Longwood the past few days and are on edge for the big tournament.

Heavy hitting by Portland featured last week's play in the Eastern League and the Duffs gathered ninety-five hits in eight games, which is batting at a .327 clip.

As a result of their consistency at the plate the Duffs tacked twelve points on to their former figures and climbed from fourth to second place in the standing in team batting.

Springfield, despite the fact that it lost a majority of its games, managed to sting the pill hard and remains the best hitting aggregation in the league. The Green Sox are leading with an average of .262, which is three points better than last week's mark.

Worcester slumped with the willow and dropped from second to a tie for third place with New London.

Lynn and Lowell share fifth place in hitting. Each team has an average of .245. The former lost four points while the latter gained four.

New London, with .944, remains the best defensive team in the circuit.

Springfield continues to monopolize a majority of the honors in team play. The Green Sox are leading with an average of .962, which is three points better than last week's mark.

Worcester slumped with the willow and dropped from second to a tie for third place with New London.

Lynn and Lowell share fifth place in hitting. Each team has an average of .245. The former lost four points while the latter gained four.

Portland, with twenty-eight, has a big lead in three-base hits. Lynn, with 125, leads in stolen bases. Portland and New London, with 108 and 103, respectively, follow.

Tyro Gains on Areyto

Although the results of the Squantum Yacht Club races last Saturday did not cause any very noticable shake up in the Yacht Racing Union of Massachusetts standings, there were a few minor changes, and the boats are now more closely bunched than they were last week.

Walter Keyes' Tyro, by scoring a win in Class A pulled up one point on the Areyto, which boat is topping the list in this class, while the Colema jumped from fifth place to third by finishing behind the Areyto. The parting of her throat halyards caused the Virginia to withdraw from the race, and Charles Joy's sloop is now in the position occupied by the Colema last week.

The Almira is now tied with the Clara for first place in Class D, as a result of her fine work at Squantum, where she led home a field of seven boats. The Clara was the sixth boat at the finish, but her time allowance moved her up one position. The failure of the new owners of the Bartwell, which has captured many championships in past years, to get all the speed possible out of this famous "rail," is a great disappointment to all who have seen this wonderful boat run away from her opponents for the last decade.

USUAL BATTLE.

The Gadfy and Lethe are having their usual battle for high honors in Class B, with the former now leading by four points. Joe Callahan will have to get busy with his Porcupine or he will be out of the running before the middle of the mid-summer series, which begins one week from next Saturday.

From recent performances, the Winona threat was to displace the Wanderer in Class H. The Wanderer is at the top at present but the Winona is going in classy style and is but four points behind the leader.

The Louis is well out in front of all Class I championship contenders, leading the Dorothy, which is the second boat in the standing by eight points. By scoring a second last Saturday, Ralph Hendrie's Cheroot annexed five points and slipped fifth place, and is now only one point behind the Acanthus.

TERN IN FRONT.

Charlie Benton's Tern is leading the Sonder Klasse by a margin of three points, while the Sally XI. is in second place by virtue of a single point. The Heralla, a German built sonder, which sailed for the President's Cup off Marblehead ten years ago, made her first start of the season in the Squantum Yacht Club regatta last Saturday and won a third. The struggle for honors in Class E, Class X and the Winthrop-Hingham One-Design Class is a keen one, with the Sally VII., Bessie, and Dasher out in front in the respective divisions.

Kramer-Grenda Special Tops Revere Card

TONIGHT'S REVERE CARD.

Special sprint match race—Frank Kramer, American, vs. Alf Grenda, Tasmania; best two in three heats.

Handicap motor-paced race—Georges Seres, France, scratch; Fred Herbert, Fall River; "Pinkie" Turville, Revere; Georges Colombatto, Italy.

One of the gala attractions of the bike season is booked for the Revere cycle track tonight, when Frank Kramer, national sprint champion, hooks up with Alf Grenda, the Tasmanian woodchopper, in a special match race, best two in three heats.

The first heat will be at one-half mile, the second at one mile and the third, if necessary, at one-half mile.

Sharing interest with the big match event is a handicap and motor-paced race, the first of its kind ever held at the beach oval. Georges Seres, the new idol of bikedom, will start from scratch, and will allot his three opponents liberal handicaps. Against Seres will be seen Fred Herbert, "Pinkie" Turville and Georges Colombatto.

After nearly two unsuccessful seasons at Revere, Seres, hailed in all Europe as the greatest of all pace followers, has finally hit his stride as was evidenced in his first triumph on Saturday night. It was a sweet victory, however, for Didier, Linart and Walthour were in the conquered field. Now, Seres intends to go through the whole class, starting from the bottom, and he earnestly believes he will be successful in his effort.

The Kramer-Grenda match is creating no end of interest among the bike "fans." The champion, probably the most marvelous athlete of the present day, is now at the zenith of his career in spite of his twenty years on a racing wheel. He proved this conclusively the other day when he won his sixteenth consecutive national championship, defeating no less a celebrity than Bob Spears, the versatile Australian.

KRAMER LANDS BIG EVENT AT NEWARK

Newark, N. J., July 24—Frank Kramer, sixteen times national champion and billed to ride at the Revere, Mass. track tonight, had no trouble defeating Arthur Spencer of Toronto and Don Bonnar of Australia in a three-cornered, one-mile match at the Velodrome yesterday afternoon.

Spencer proved to be the master of Harry Kaiser of the Bronx in the mile Brassard race.

GHEE TO AID CAVANAUGH.

Hanover, N. H., July 24—Graduate Manager H. G. Pender of Dartmouth announces that Milton P. Ghee, Jr. '15, of Kenilworth, Ill., has been appointed assistant football coach for next Fall. He is one of the Green's former star quarterbacks.

FOLWELL TO WORK IN OPEN

New Penn Coach Is Opposed to Secrecy—Will Train Quakers as He Did Lafayette.

Philadelphia, July 24—Robert C. Folwell, coach of the University of Pennsylvania eleven, is here today making training plans for the coming football season, which begins September 11 at Langhorne, Pa.

Folwell has a number of original ideas concerning the organization of a football eleven, which he will follow in moulding a team for the Red and Blue.

"I have completed my plans for the preliminary work," said Folwell. "The training system I will use will be precisely the same as that which I used at Lafayette and Washington and Jefferson. It is entirely different from anything I would like to say, and that is, there will be no 'moonlight scrimmage' on Franklin Field this year. There are more teams killed by overtraining than by defeats. I shall be the sole master of how much drudgery is to be done.

LITTLE SECRET PRACTICE.

"There is another important fact I wish to emphasize, and it is that there will be little secret practice this season, and the gates will be open at all times to the undergraduates and the public. My practices will be something unique, for I guess I am somewhat of a driver. There will probably be short games between the varsity and scrub daily, but while the games will be played with all the vigor of a real match, they will be extremely short. The spectators are welcome to witness these battles.

"I have received letters from almost every member of the varsity squad, stating they would be on hand for the first practice. Howard Berry, the pentathlon champion, is going to turn out. General Price has sent word that he will relieve Berry from duty on the border. Some critics claim Berry is a marvel and never had a chance to show his real merit.

"From other sources I have heard that Berry lacks football instinct. Then it is up to me to teach him if this is true. If Berry is a failure the blame will be my own, if he lends himself to my methods. Captain Neil Mathews will return to Philadelphia about September 1 to assist Manager Charles Levett in the final preparations for the departure of the players for Langhorne, Pa."

Hawaii Mermen Hang up Three New Records

Honolulu, July 24.—Honolulu swimmers placed three world's records to their credit in the Y. M. C. A. tank here.

Duke Kahanamoku negotiated the 100-yard dash in the 20-yard tank in 1 3-5s., breaking his old record of 34 2-5s. In the 500-yard relay event a team composed of Kahanamoku, George Cunha, O. Lane, H. Kruger and J. Kelli covered the distance in 4m. 43 3-5s.

The first four named also burst up a new time when they made the 400-yard relay in 3m. 14 3-5s.

Both the relay records broken were held by the Illinois Athletic Club. Aaron Ind chalked up an 8'6"s in his dogwork.

BOXING BRIEFS AND GOSSIP

Greater Boston boxing fans are anticipating receiving their banner treat of the season at the Arena tomorrow night when Jack Britton of New York, so-called welterweight champion, and Johnny Griffiths, the Akron Flash, look up in their twelve-round Queensberry performance.

If weight is made the contest will be a championship one, as while Britton's claim to the welterweight title is ridiculed in certain quarters, the New York boy seems supreme in the division. Anyhow, he whipped the undoubtable Ted (Kid) Lewis three times running last Winter and his five experts squawked when Jimmie Johnston picked up the championship, which was lying around unclaimed, and awarded it to his fighting charge.

Britton and Griffiths have already gone to the mat once this season, the bout with Ted Lewis being the first time they had it out in a decision affair. Their previous tussles were fought in Ohio. Griffiths has always claimed he was right there with Britton every time, while Britton has his several scraps with the Akron kid chalked up as "it's in his dogbook."

Griffiths made a splendid impression when on in his lone Boston start in May. His vis-a-vis was Willie Beecher, that awkward little customer from New York, and Johnny treated him to an out-and-out whaling. Griffiths owns a left which is practically as fast as Britton's famous member; the mitt which has put Jack in first place among the welters. Griffiths is also naturally as speedy as Britton. He's every bit as well put up as Jack and that despite the fact it was only a few months ago when he was allied with the lightweights. At that, Griffiths has doubt, if Griffiths really made 135 pounds at any time within the past eighteen months.

The Britton-Griffiths bout is the first one put on at the Arena in many, many months that has had the betting even money. Griffiths' comeback together in a comeback double. If the champion is warmer than a 5 to 4 or 6 to 5 favorite at post-time, in fact, Griffiths' admirers are out to cover all odds offered at the price may be practically even money when the two battlers square off.

Their Married Life

Warren Agrees to Send Winifred West to Her Grandmother for the Summer

Copyright, 1916, International News Service.

The day that Helen had hoped would be an happy one was not successful after all. Warren, who was plainly quite interested in Miss Wilcox, had answered her gay badinage all during the lunch. This fact had left Helen to the young artist, who was Lola Wilcox's companion, and as Helen felt neither light hearted nor gay, she did not appear at her best and there were heavy silences.

Helen gave a sigh of relief when Lola Wilcox finally rose and departed, her artist following in her wake. Warren turned to Helen after they had left with a complimentary remark.

"What's the matter with you?" he queried. "You've hardly said a thing since the meal started."

"Well, you and Miss Wilcox talked so much that I hardly had an opportunity."

"Nonsense; the conversation was general enough. Why didn't you try to make it pleasant for that young chap with her? You sat next to him."

"Yes, and Miss Wilcox sat on the other side. Why didn't she talk to him? They were together."

Warren shrugged his shoulders. "If you are determined to take that view of it, why, have it you own way. I simply remarked that you were unusually quiet."

"I'm surprised that you noticed that fact, you were so busily occupied." Helen said childishly. She was sorry afterward that she had admitted the fact that she was jealous. It was not good for any man to have a woman admit jealousy; it took away a woman's choicest weapon, her pride.

Helen had hardly eaten a thing. The good lunch that she had helped Warren to order had been taken away almost untasted. She could not have eaten if she tried, and when they finally left the room all her exultation had departed.

"Shall we motor down to the beach?"

"It really makes no difference to me," Helen said shortly.

"I suppose you are going to make yourself disagreeable," Warren remarked testily. "I wish that we never go anywhere that you don't spoil it all by taking exception to something I do."

"Warren, that isn't true, but I did think that you might have let Miss Wilcox go to some other table instead of asking her to join us."

"I don't agree with you. What harm did it do to have them sit at our table for the short time they were in the dining room?"

WARREN'S EXPLANATION

"They probably would have preferred being alone but they couldn't refuse to stay when you insisted."

"I insisted because I thought it was the thing to do." And Warren busied himself with the car. Helen knew that he was right as far as asking Miss Wilcox to sit at their table was concerned. If Warren had not seemed so interested in the woman Helen would not have dreamed of protesting.

"You like her pretty well, don't you?" she observed as they started. She wanted to be assured that Warren was not particularly impressed with her, but if she did, she was doomed to disappointment for Warren replied with some enthusiasm, for him.

"Yes, I think she is a mighty brainy woman."

"I thought you didn't like that type."

"I don't like the masculine type like Mrs. Dalton nor the hard type like the woman who lives under us, but I do like a woman with brains and personality. Miss Wilcox is brainy without being a bluestocking, and she is one of the best looking women I ever met."

Helen sat perfectly still. Her face felt as though it had been frozen and she was helpless to retort. Miss Wilcox was exactly opposite to Helen in every respect. She was brilliant where Helen was simple, had plenty of poise where Helen lacked it, was able to make her own way in the world, and was still sweetly feminine.

Helen knew that such women were most dangerous to a man, whether he was married or single. Frances was that type. Little Anne had some of the qualities, but was too simple to try to exert her power. Once more Helen wished inordinately for brains and independence.

The day was lovely, and the heat that had been oppressive that morning was diminished by a cool breeze. Helen determined to throw off her unhappiness and be as bright-hearted as possible. She wished with all her power to make her feelings that other women seemed to possess. Nothing of late had gone her way and she felt depressed and miserable.

TO SEND WINIFRED AWAY.

"Well, we needn't talk about the subject forever," she said finally, with a light laugh. "There is something else I wanted to speak to you about. Do you know, dear, we ought to send Winifred out of the city. I thought of sending her to mother's. She isn't strong enough to stand a Summer here."

"Why, there isn't any danger as far as the climate is concerned."

"Yes, there is, Warren. You never can tell. I want to get her out of town as soon as possible."

"Of course, if you think so," said Warren, turning a worried face to Helen. "We'll send her West, but you will have to go with her."

"I could take her as far as Cleveland. Mother would meet me there."

"All right. We'll get her out of town whenever you say." Warren was so quick about agreeing with her that Helen felt strangely gentle toward him. The bitterness went out of her thoughts. After all, they had Winifred, and a child was a bond that the most fascinating woman could not sever. She wouldn't worry, anyway, until there was cause to worry. Life seemed to send those times often enough as it was.

Popular Boston Lady Tells How Plant Juice Has Cured Her Indigestion and Dyspepsia.

sponsible for a large percentage of the ills of mankind. Much unnecessary suffering would be avoided if every person would seek relief at the first sign of trouble instead of waiting until the disease obtains a firm hold upon the system.

Plant Juice, the new herbal stomach remedy, is fast revolutionizing the relieving all diseases of the stomach which are so prevalent. Every day more and more local people are coming to realize that Plant Juice is what it claims to be—the highest testimonials are received from those having had relieved of illness of long standing by Plant Juice, after all other aids had have failed.

Recently, Mrs. Delia Fay, a well-known Boston lady who resides at No. 15A Hancock street, Roxbury, told one of friends here, said:

"I have suffered from stomach trouble in the form of indigestion and dyspepsia for a number of years and in the shape of medicine gone me any relief. At times I was very bad indeed, was to form in my stomach and I was all bloated up and could not eat a thing. I was nervous all the time, but I will say that since I began the use of Plant Juice and after taking three bottles I feel like a new woman. I can eat anything I want and have no more aches or pains. Plant Juice has cured me and I cannot say too much in praise of it." Advertisement.

On "The Limited"

"Some Day I'll Own That Railroad"

"Some Day I'll Own Him"

I WAS one who looked out of "The Limited" streaking through tiny towns whose upturned faces went by like a Peter Newell ribbon roaring over shining country streams that went on shining and talking just as though the shadow of the great black train, so speedy and so wonderful, did not lay upon them; racing by quiet woods, where I could see for a marvel minute a tiny picture of cool, green gloom and splattering flowers, zinging out into the open under the clear blue bell of the sky, smoke streaking from the head of the great serpent. I was one, and I thought a lot; I did not eat quite all the time. One does that thing on boats and trains. Here is one thing I saw—and thought about—in picture language.

Out we hummed, from the narrow corridor that lay in the woods. I could see the engine ahead, a great black creature looking straight ahead, its tiny head on its great round body, going its thunderous way, the very rails under us chanting, "T'N' York—T'N' York!" and never a word else. I, a little rider on this marvel blacksnake, watched the fields flow by. At last a great rolling meadow raced into sight. It was green, summery and wide, drifted over for miles with the snow of daisies that bowed in the wind. Behind it great oaks, far off, marked where a stream ran coolly. The blue sky was a tumble with white clouds. Birds came winging from the far distance of woods.

And there, far out, in the great world of waist-high daisies, a lonely speck in the fields, sat, half-buried, a little farmer boy, in the dull blue of overalls and the sweeping brim of sunhat. He was watching the train go by, aloof, remote. There was something of grandeur, something lofty, in his lone little figure; and I had an uncanny little feel of exultation as though, "by the Grace of God," I had been fortunate enough to look on the babyhood of a President.

Perhaps the little lips I could not see from so far, said soberly, forgetting the daisies that swept his little legs: "SOME DAY I'LL OWN THAT RAILROAD."

Later we rushed intimately above a little green door yard, where a baby girl, under the cool of a tree in her "peram" talked to herself. It was far away from the little blue figure with the motionless intentness, buried in his daisies—five hundred miles away—but I wondered if she didn't say in her baby language, while she ate her hemstitched bonnet string, "SOME DAY I'LL OWN HIM!"

The Biography of a Sinner

Her Father Refuses to Let Rex Have a Frock Coat to Wear as Usher at Corinne's Wedding

By ANN LISLE

Copyright, 1916, by International News Service.

"Vera, neither of those chaps is worth getting hurt about. Do Witt consoled himself pretty easily after you threw him over, and Norton—oh, well, think how easy it was to steal him from Myra. He's just that sort—no deep feelings."

"Not like you, Rex." I said in a burst of understanding. "If you once cared, you'd go right on caring in the face of everything, wouldn't you?"

"Yes, I would, Vera. I'm like that." There was something bitter in Rex's tone.

Mildred isn't worth it, either, Rex. She's the sort to console herself easily, too."— I began.

"Let's leave Mildred out of it, Vera, dear. I guess if I'd been worth caring for, she would have cared. But I am a weakling."

"You're not." I interrupted indignantly. "You're splendid, Rex. You've stuck by me always and you would have been loyal to Mildred if there had been anything for you to be loyal to."

"Perhaps. Yes, I think I would have fought if I had been sure of winning. But I couldn't be true enough to myself to fight for a lost cause, that time."

There was something bitter in Rex's voice—something old and wise and philosophical beyond his years. I ought to have gone on then, I suppose, to find out how deeply conscious Rex was of the fact that he had failed his own ideals—but instead I remembered that I was tired and that I had had a pretty difficult evening myself, and enough of gloom.

So I began lightly discussing what the chances were for me to persuade father to buy a new dress for the wedding and for Rex to get a new frock coat and grey trousers to make him uniform with the rest of the ushers.

I had not been asked to be a bridesmaid. Corinne's only attendant was Myra. But Rex had been invited to usher.

After our strange youth, with so little of social gayety to brighten it and so little of general popularity to give us faith in our own personalities, that invitation meant a great deal to Rex.

"Dad could you be persuaded to present a fellow with about fifty dollars advance salary?" asked Rex at dinner the next day.

"Have you gotten into debt, my son?" demanded father sternly.

"No, sir. But I might have to if I couldn't secure an advance from you. I need the money to get a frock coat and the rest of an usher's regalia for Corinne's wedding."

"Yes, you, I suppose," said father, turning to Len.

"No, sir, Corinne must have thought one of the family enough, so she choose Rex," replied Len a little bitterly.

NO NEW FROCK COAT

That settled matters. Father refused to let Rex have the "dudish fixings" which he said no boy of twenty-one needed. Nor did I have a new dress—my championship of Rex cost me that.

"It's absurd for a boy of Rex's age to want such extravagant clothes. He doesn't need them. Besides, I think it bad taste for Corinne to choose him rather than Len," said father, grimly, when I sought him out privately later to plead my brother's cause.

"But she likes him better, father. She didn't ask me to be in her wedding party, either. Everybody loves Rex."

"Small good that will do Rex, Vera, you never stop to think of the fact that it may hurt Len to see how much more easily Rex wins affection than he does. When I was a boy I had to go through just what Len has always to endure. I was jealous and bitter about it. Len isn't. But I don't propose to further you in your schemes to humiliate him and exalt Reginald."

I persisted, and father finally got into a cold fury and ordered me to cease annoying him.

Mildred Francis came home in time for Corinne's wedding. She telephoned me the night before the wedding and asked if I wouldn't sit with her in the church. I never was quick at replies over the telephone, and I found myself unable to meet that situation.

I knew that if father saw Mildred and Rex sitting together he would be perfectly capable of making a scene at once. And I wasn't willing to sit with Mildred and leave Rex alone to bear his humiliation of not being an usher.

"I'm going with Rex, Mildred," I said, honestly.

"Oh, I thought he was going to be an usher. Of course, I wouldn't intrude if you're going with him."

Mildred waited a moment. I knew she wanted me to suggest that she sit with us. But I was afraid—afraid of father. The fear that had shadowed my own youth shadowed me again when I remembered the dreadful scene father had made after my last effort to persuade him to let Rex usher at the wedding. So all I said was: "Perhaps you'll see Rex at the reception later—you do owe him an explanation or two, Mildred."

I suppose my rebuff hurt Mildred and stung her to an air of aloof and impersonal pride. Rex was proud, too, and incapable of making any advances. And the little misunderstanding I had unintentionally fostered grew to a final breach, in whose chasm of coldness a life itself was buried.

LEN TAKES A CHANCE

Len, who was with us when we met Mildred as we left the church, fairly beamed on her and said in a tone that must have done much to restore the pride I had wounded: "Mildred, could you be persuaded to take pity on me? Rex and Vera are so absorbed in each other that I have an awful feeling of being the extra fellow in this family group. If you are in a very merciful mood you'll desert your family and let me desert mine. What do you say?"

Mildred smiled coquettishly. "I say yes."

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

Settled Him

"Jane," said her mistress, "you really will have to put a stop to the visits of your follower."

"Yes, I must, ma'am," replied Jane.

"But you've said that before," expostulated her mistress, "and there it ended."

"I'm sure I've done my best, ma'am," said Jane; "it isn't easy. But I'll try and settle him on my next Thursday out."

Her next Thursday out came and went. Her follower also came and went (with Jane, and Jane eventually returned herself in a radiant mood.

"I've settled him this time, ma'am" she exclaimed, breathlessly.

Her mistress was delighted. But in the hour of victory one should be generous to the fallen foes, so she expressed the hope that Jane had not been too hard on the young man.

"Hard on him!" cried Jane. "No, ma'am, that I wasn't. I've just married him, and I leave at the end of the month!"

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

MUST CHOOSE FOR HERSELF

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A dear friend of mine is receiving attentions from a man three years her senior. She is also going out at the same time with another young man. The first can give her everything, while the other has nothing except that she cares for him. The first is quite well respectable, from very fine people and has a very good business, but is rather backward. The one she favors is an ordinary working man of good appearance. She seems to be more particular about the way they dress than anything else.

DAISY.

THE girl you picture does not seem to me to be very admirable or worth the serious consideration of a fine man. I am a little inclined to be sorry for the man who gets her as a wife. She ought to give up her false ideals as to what is worth while. Her reason for caring for the second man do not seem to be worthy—evidently it is merely a case of emotional appeal, which is one of the things required for a happy marriage, but by no means the only one. If she were a fine enough girl she would probably respond to the quiet, hard-working man who comes from good stock. As it is, she seems to like the "sport," who spends his salary on clothes. She had better go into her own motives seriously and then try to make a sane, well-balanced choice.

YOU SHOULD ADMIRE HIM

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have a friend of whom I am very fond and in whom I find many pleasing qualities. He has clean, healthy ideas regarding the serious problems of life and shows a good deal of common sense, but he has one fault—he is illiterate. Due to circumstances at home it was necessary for him to give up school at a very early age, and he has been so busy supporting his family that he found but little time for study. However, he is now in a position to save for himself and has asked me to marry him when he is able to prove to me a secure future, which he judges will be in about two years. Do you think in spite of his lack of education we will be happy? I, myself, have had a good education. Then again, when he is away and I receive letters from him, in which the spelling is rather hopeless, it ruins the wrong way.

MARGARET.

DON'T be a mental snob. "Book learning" is a very pleasant adjunct, but not an absolutely requisite one for real manhood. If this man is ambitious and has common sense and an interest in big matters, he will probably acquire a splendid practical education as he goes on in the world. A wife who appreciates his qualities and admires him for overcoming his handicaps and who doesn't take a superior attitude because she happened to get certain advantages which he missed can help him to go far in the world. But if you are going to look down on him and fancy yourself above him, don't marry him, for you will wreck his life. As a matter of fact, some of the world's greatest men lacked all cultural advantages—and rose to the top through their natural powers. I think you have every reason to look up to and admire this man and be grateful that your lover's greatest defects show in his spelling rather than in his character.

YOU SHOULD NEVER HAVE SPOKEN

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I recently met a man six years my senior, who made an engagement with me. Now, Miss Fairfax, when I was out with him he behaved in a way I did not approve of, and when I told him he said I wasn't "game" enough for him. I like this man very much, but I am puzzled what to do—whether I should keep an engagement he made with me to go automobile riding or not. Now, Miss Fairfax, tell me whether I should meet him again or try to forget.

RUBY.

OF course you can forget! Probably he got entirely the wrong impression of you from the fact that you met him without an introduction and rode around with him. My dear child, do not see him again. I fear he is a dangerous companion for you. Unless you are a little more dignified and formal in your manner of meeting men you are likely to find yourself involved in many unpleasant situations. Don't flirt with any strange men, and see no more of this particular one.

WEDDING ATTIRE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am about to be married, the marriage to be held in church at 8 p. m. Should I wear a full-dress suit, or will it be proper to be married in a plain blue serge suit? The bride will be dressed in white satin, with both train and veil. There will be all the attendants necessary for such a wedding.

K. Y. Z.

A BLUE serge business suit is entirely out of keeping with an evening wedding ceremonial at which the bride is to wear typical bridal array.

Signs of the Times

Quaint Designations for the Inns of England

The names of English country inns have always exercised a fascination for American travelers—the more so as it is realized that the vanished days of pack-horse travel are gone never to return. Nearly every one has heard of the pack-horse that carried merchandise when roads were few and too narrow or rough for wheeled traffic. But what, it may be asked, was a "talbot"?

The talbot was the old English hound, something between a mastiff and a bloodhound, which accompanied the packmen on their lonely and often dangerous business journeys.

There is one surviving old picture-sign of the "Pack-horse and Talbot" near London, on the Chiswick high road, and it correctly shows the talbot-dog on guard beside the laden pack-horse.

In the quaint, out-of-the-world old village of Great Mongeham, in a by-way near Deal, hangs the artistic old wrought-iron sign of the Three Horseshoes, dated 1735. It has hung there for a hundred and eighty years and seems in as good condition as ever.

Among the queerest of signs is that of the Stewponey Inn, near Stourbridge, the resort of beanfeasters and merry parties. Not one person in ten thousand could tell you what kind of a pony that was. As a matter of fact, the name is a soldier's corruption of Estepona, a place in Spain.

The inn was originally named Stewponey by a soldier who had served under Wellington in the Peninsular War, and who, with his comrades, evolved the method of pronouncing the Spanish name.

Soldier signs have always been among the most popular, and some signs keep them excellent company. Admiral Vernon was once a prime favorite. He it was who so daringly captured Portobello in 1739. But a greater than he arose and captured his popularity, so that Vernon was repainted and became the Lord Nelson of the Battle of Trafalgar, whose signboard glory has not yet been dimmed.

The Marquis of Granby was a favorite military sign in the long ago, and is still often found. Belonging to the great family of Manners, this prosperous godfather of village inns was a son of the third Duke of Rutland, and took a great part in the Seven Years' War.

The Duke of York is the sign of Jeffrey Amherst in existence, and that James Forbes, famous general in the inn at Crown Point, on the Sevenoaks and Maidstone roads. Amherst was a famous general in his day, and became commander in chief of the British army. He served gloriously in Canada, and won his chief victory against the Indians at Crown Point, from which this sign is in Kent was afterwards named.

He settled on an estate he called Montreal, near Sevenoaks, and died in 1797. His descendant, Earl Amherst, resided there. He was also appointed after a portrait by Sir Joshua Reynolds.

There is a sign of the Lion and Fiddle at a hamlet called Hilperton, near Trowbridge. It is a melancholy animal, playing something on a minor key, illustrating, no doubt, the folly of giving time to it humorously and cleverly drawn. The legend above,

"Here is music without sorrow—

Pay today and trust tomorrow,"

would almost seem to have a cry from the heart of some trustful landlord who had trusted not wisely but too well, and had determined on "Never again!"

Up-To-Date

Captain Sparks had just been placed in charge of the country fire station, and looked a very important personage as he conducted a visitor over the premises. Presently, notwithstanding the fact that the engine resembled nothing so much as a street pump, and other uncanny likenesses, it was evident that it was neither useful nor ornamental.

The visitor was duly impressed, but one thing puzzled him.

"Why," he said, "you don't seem to have either a telegraph or telephone installation in the village. How do you summon your men when a fire breaks out?"

The captain was equal to the occasion.

"Oh, that's simple enough," he replied. "We sends 'em all a postcard."

STOCKS AND INVESTMENTS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were weak in New York at noon, there having been a reaction during the second hour. It was attributed chiefly to selling on foreign account. It is said that taking advantage of the recent advance a large quantity of securities shipped here from Europe were put on the market. There was concentrated selling of industrial alcohol by several brokers. U. S. Steel declined. The recessional affected railroads and, in fact, all classes.

DECLINES WERE GENERAL.

Declines at 12 o'clock included Best Sugar ¾, American Smelting ¼, Butte & Superior ¼, Car and Foundry ¾, Baldwin ¾, Crucible ¼, Distillers 1⅝, Industrial Alcohol 6⅝, Mexican Petroleum 1¼, Studebaker ⅝, Willys-Overland, ex-dividend ⅝, Kennecott ¼, Utah Copper ¼, Reading ¼, New Haven ⅛, Baltimore & Ohio, ex-dividend, ⅛, and Union Pacific ⅛.

Among gains were New York Central ⅛, American Can ⅛, U. S. Steel ⅛, Amalgamated Copper ⅛, Inspiration Marine preferred ⅛ and Maxwell 1¼.

Canadian Pacific, Southern Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio, Chino, American Locomotive and American Zinc were unchanged.

The majority of issues by noon were above their lowest of the morning.

BOSTON LIST IRREGULAR.

The Boston list had become irregular. Alaska Gold was more active than usual in the second hour and advanced.

Declines included Woolen preferred ½, Atlantic Gulf and West Indies common ¼, Boston & Maine 1, Osceola ¼, Quincy ½ and United Shoe ¼.

Among gains were Alaska Gold ¼, Boston Elevated ¼, United Fruit ¼, Butte & Superior ¼, Copper Range ⅛, North Butte ⅛, Mohawk 1 and Wolverine ¼. Later Alaska Gold showed more than a point gain.

BOSTON CURB QUIET AND WEAK.

Trading on the Boston Curb was quiet during the first hour, and the tone was rather weak. The majority of issues were unchanged or lower. Gains included United Verde ⅝ and Nixon ⅛ cent. Among declines were Porcupine Premier 2 cents, Boston & Montana 2 cents, Fortuna 4 cents, New Cornelia ¼ and Boston Ely ⅛.

Ellis, Chief Consolidated and Aetna Explosives were unchanged. Among the most active stocks had been Porcupine Premier, Boston & Montana and Nixon.

MARKETS HAD MORE LIFE.

At the opening in New York, strength, which developed last week, continued. But opening gains ruled small. Lackawanna Steel advanced a point. Within a few minutes Maxwell was up more than two. Then came the quietest group, Anaconda and Kennecott were the most active coppers. Trading was brisk in U. S. Steel. Market strength was in part due to expectations that tomorrow U. S. Steel will report second quarter net earnings of from $75,000,000 to $80,000,000. Another favorable factor was the increase of the New York banks' surplus reserve last week. Munition and motor car stocks were strong. Best Sugar soon advanced and there was good demand for Marine issues. The tone remained good throughout the first hour. There was more life to trading than for several days.

While the Boston market began quiet, it was more active than has been usual at the start of late. Most of the early trading was in American Zinc and a few coppers. Prices advanced. Boston & Maine was weak.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

In two years Europe has spent $45,000,000,000 for war purposes, and it is figured that the conflict is costing a total of more than $100,000,000 a day.

The Pittsburgh & Lake Erie railroad has declared an extra dividend of 20 per cent., and had authorized the issue of $5,000,000 in new stock to present stockholders at $20 a share.

The Boston Financial News states that the American Sugar Refining Co. is understood to have accepted an additional order from the British commission for refined sugar at its Chalmette plant in Louisiana. This order, it is said, totals 20,000 tons, bringing the whole order up to over 50,000 tons. This business is being done on a percentage basis. The British commission supplies the raw sugar which was bought some time ago.

Chairman Topping of the Republic Iron & Steel Company, Southern Pacific net profits for the first half of this year amounted to $6,204,527. The amount applicable to dividends is $5,765,076.

New York underwriters are now generally quoting 1¾ per cent. war risk on belligerent vessels and 1 per cent. on American vessels to the war zone and the Mediterranean. Some underwriters will not accept less than 2 per cent.

SAY COTTON RATES ARE NOT JUSTIFIED

By International News Service.

Washington, July 24.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today declared reasonable existing rates on cotton piece goods from New England producing points to Rockford and Kenosha, Wis., but held that on cotton piece goods from New England to various points in the Middle Atlantic States rates are not justified.

American Zinc, Lead & Smelting Co.

The Directors of the American Zinc, Lead and Smelting Company have declared a regular quarterly dividend of one dollar and fifty cents ($1.50) per share on the preferred capital stock payable August 1, 1916, to stockholders of record July 24, 1916.

R. S. FARWELL, Treasurer.

ABRAHAMS GLAD TO ENTER FIGHT FOR BOARD

Henry Abrahams, who was indorsed as a candidate for the Boston School Committee by the Typographical Union No. 13 yesterday, at the meeting in Faneuil Hall, believes he could serve the city of Boston with effectiveness as committeeman.

"No element is so much interested in the welfare of public schools as the wage earners," was Abrahams's answer to a query asking him why he thought a labor representative should be on the board. He continued:

"The public chool is the wage earner's college, and what the boy and girl learns while in the grammar and high schools must serve them for the rest of their lives.

OWES ALL TO THE SCHOOLS.

"I have sent eight children through the public schools of Boston, and I may say I owe all I am to Massachusetts and principally to the schools of Boston.

"Personally my interests would be to push the slogan "Rot" with even more vigor than is the present case. It would be my effort to focus the school curriculum on such studies and occupations as are calculated to teach boys and girls for their life work, and I think I am in a pretty good position to know what is needed to make a youth successful.

"The American workingman, the mechanic, trained in the public schools of Boston is still inferior to mechanics who come to this country from Germany. It is because we are not paying enough attention to vocations, and too much to specialization. We have no watchers, and our mechanics—very few of them—can do all work in connection with any manufactured article.

USE OF SCHOOLS.

"Another matter in which I am greatly interested is in the larger use of schoolhouses. I see no reason why more of the schools; in fact, all of them, should not be open in the evenings for getting the people of the wards want them.

"What proves to be of benefit for the ward is surely good for the whole city.

"Because I think labor should be more directly represented in the board, and because my fellow-unionists have shown their confidence in me for so honorable a position, I shall gladly stand as a candidate and shall stay in the fight until the polls close."

Relief Given 18,543 Horses.

The Boston Workhorse Relief Association's report shows that 18,390 horses were watered and 4,153 were showered the past week at the five water stations maintained by the association.

"The Stone Wall That Keeps Mr. Wilson from Aiding Poland"

THE President announces that he is beginning to be worried about the tragedy of Poland, but says that he is simply up against a stone wall in the matter of relief for the victims of that awful tragedy.

Before discussing this statement, suppose we set out the facts.

A year ago last May the Russian armies had crossed the Polish border, occupied Galicia and reached the passes of the Carpathians leading down into the plains of Hungary. Then Von Hindenburg and Von Mackensen fell upon the invaders and drove them across Galicia and Russian Poland.

As the half-civilized hordes retreated, they were ordered by their officers and by the Grand Duke himself to lay the whole country waste. The savage Cossacks carried out this cruel order with all the ardor of savages. Nothing was spared—neither villages, homes, farms, crops nor the lives of the wretched and defenceless people.

These wretched and helpless people were chiefly of the Jewish religion, and, amidst the other superstitions of which the Czar is the abject slave, none is more dominant over his feeble and foolish mind than his hatred of the Jews.

It is as clear as day that a part of the Russian autocracy's plan from the very beginning of the war was annihilation of the Jewish inhabitants of Russia.

They were drafted into the armies and sent to be slaughtered in droves and, since old men and women and children could not be sent to die in the trenches, the Cossacks were let loose upon them to kill, burn and destroy, and then famine was left to slay the miserable ones who had escaped fire and steel.

The German officials have done all that it was possible for them to do to relieve the agonies of these miserable ones. But Germany itself has been short of food for months and must wait for the new harvests to have a surplus.

Meantime, here in America, millions of dollars have been collected and great warehouses have been stocked with supplies of clothing, food and medicines for the relief of these suffering and dying thousands in Poland, and NOT A POUND of all this ample relief has left the docks of New York BECAUSE THE ENGLISH GOVERNMENT REFUSES TO PERMIT AMERICAN RELIEF SHIPS TO CARRY RELIEF SUPPLIES TO THESE STARVING WRETCHES, and because the President of the United States has not the decision and courage to load these relief supplies on board American warships and send aid and succor to Poland, under the protection of our guns.

Mr. Wilson says that he is beginning to worry over this situation. That is commendable. But why wait until election time to begin to worry?

The hideous tragedy of Poland and the terrible outrages of the Russian soldiers have been related to Mr. Wilson and to the people of America through many articles and editorials in the Hearst papers during the past year.

If Mr. Wilson had begun to be interested earlier, already the sufferings of Poland might have been relieved.

On July 11 the President claims to have been informed that in that portion of Poland covered by the Russian armies in their retreat every child under seven years of age had died of starvation and the children had gnawed their own arms to satisfy the pangs of hunger. All of this has been related many times in the AMERICAN, as was also the devastation of Poland by the Russian armies a year ago.

The only stone wall that Mr. Wilson has been up against is the opposition of England to any relief being given the suffering, starving Polish people.

The wishes of England have always been a stone wall in the path of Mr. Wilson's humanitarian or patriotic impulses.

The wishes of England made him disregard the pledges of the Democratic platform and violate his own personal pledges in regard to the Panama Canal.

The wishes of England made him open the Panama Canal to British ships on the same terms with American ships.

We strongly suspect that Mr. Wilson's humiliating retreat from Mexico was because he found the wishes of England a stone wall against the performance of our duties to our own citizens there.

And now we find that the deliberate ORDERS of England prevent the shipment on American ships of food and other supplies contributed by American citizens for the relief of starving and perishing women and children in Poland.

The pretence that German soldiers might get this food is ridiculous.

The German Government offers to place an American commission in charge of every pound of relief supplies, precisely as has been done in Belgium, this American commission to guarantee that every pound of relief supplies shall go only to suffering Polish civilian people.

The English Government's real reason for refusing to permit these wretched people's lives to be saved is that its ally, Russia, insists that they shall not be saved, and the English Government stands by the Russian Government, to the shame and dishonor of both.

And just as Mr. Asquith, a Christian English gentleman, consents to the awful sufferings of these poor starving Polish people TO PLEASE RUSSIA, so Mr. Wilson, a Christian American, consents not to send Christian America's relief to these poor, starving, perishing wretches in order TO PLEASE ENGLAND.

We write these truths in sorrow and in shame.

They are shameful, sorrowful, abominable truths—but still truths. And they should be told to you and will be told to you by this newspaper, even if not another American publication is American enough to speak out manfully in the matter.

Men and women of America, this shameful and unmanly and un-Christian connivance and partnership with savage Russia in the starvation and annihilation of the people of Poland is a black blot upon our national good repute for all time to come.

It is unworthy of our history, of our noble lineage, of our traditions and character and a shame and a disgrace to the American name.

Mr. Wilson seeks re-election as an indorsement of his actions during his present term.

We hope and we believe that you people, whatever else you may indorse in the Wilson administration, will NOT indorse the policies and the conduct which permit American men and women and children to be murdered in Mexico and Polish men and women and children to gnaw their own flesh in the horrible agonies of starvation.

Mr. Wilson should be brought to realize that the stone wall built by England around his activities as President of the United States may become the stone wall in the way of his re-election to the office of President of the United States.

We believe that a great majority of you plain, upstanding American men and women feel exactly as we do when you contemplate our shame in Mexico and our dishonor in Poland.

The Oldest Member

By William F. Kirk

HE wastes no time in airy talk,
This straight old chap who sits alone
While younger members laugh and walk
About the club. There is a tone
Of gruffness in his aged voice
And short and sharp his answers fall,
But when the younger men rejoice
He lends a smile to one and all.

Their pranks and plans are not for him,
This oldest member dreaming there
Of days when he was swift and slim,
Stranger alike to fear and care;
For days there were when "Uncle Ben,"
So stooped, so silent and so dour,
Had shown a pace that dazzled men
And made men marvel at his power.

The young men spoke of merry nights,
Of revels high and revels low,
Of siren songs and dancing lights
In winding ways the worldly know.
The old man's head with memories teems,
The old man's eyes conceal a smile,
As Fancy leads him in his dreams
O'er many a long-forgotten mile.

The grand old boys! The young old men!
Their sturdy race will soon be run,
But bravely on past hill and glen
They journey toward the setting sun.
Bravely they travel toward the night,
Their patient eyes still bright and bold,
Each death a voyage to The Light,
Each life a story grandly told.

Fishes Surely Can Hear; Many Observers Think They Also Can Talk

Garrett P. Serviss Tells of Wonder World Beneath the Water from Which Our Distant Progenitors Probably Came

By Garrett P. Serviss

"The phrase 'silent as a clam' has made me wonder why it is that fish are almost the only animals incapable of making vocal sounds. What is the reason? In the anatomical construction of fishes is any provision made for vocal organs? If not, can you tell me why fishes alone in all the animal kingdom have no such organs?—W. M. W."

PUTTING aside the fact that a clam is not a fish, it may be broadly stated that fishes have no recognized vocal organs. Nevertheless they have organs of hearing, though without external ears. Some fishes surely, and all possibly, can make sounds, but there is no evidence that they regularly employ these sounds as "voices."

Still, Dr. David Starr Jordan, who probably knows as much about fish as any man living, remarks that "these sounds may possibly be useful to the species, but they are not well differentiated, nor have they been so investigated as to be well understood."

Dr. Jordan thinks that the "grating" sounds made by some fishes arise from the pharyngeal bones, behind the gills, while the "singing" sounds uttered by other fishes originate in the air-bladder. There is a peculiar "singing fish" known on the California coast as "the milkshipman," which may be a joking name originating among sailors.

If We Could Only Live in Water We Might Learn of Fishes' "Voices"

If we could only live in the water for a while we might come out with some surprising information about the "voices," and the hearing powers, as well as the intelligence, of fishes. But in fact the water world is almost unknown to us, except through a few narrow ways of inference, and this in spite of the fact that, if we trace our ancestral lines far back in geological time, we find that we ourselves must have sprung from the ocean.

There are certain nervous terrors which we inherit that may also, possibly, be traced back to the times when our aquatic forebears sought refuge from arrowy enemies in the tremulous shadows of sea caverns.

Although ichthyologists say little about the subject, there are some very suggestive facts which seem to indicate that fishes were not provided with hearing solely to enable them to escape from their foes, such foes, for instance, as cunning piscators, like old Isaak Walton, stealing silently along the banks of a trout stream and dropping appetizing baits into the water, with only the sounds that a buzzing fly might make. I risk no scientific reputation in quoting an interesting story told by Dr. C. C. Abbott as an indication that fishes may even have a language.

Fishes Flee When a Roach Warns Them of Approach of Their Enemies

Dr. Abbott was floating in his boat over a quiet spot in Poaetquisings Creek, in New Jersey, where bottom springs pour up cool, fresh water in abundance, and this was what he saw:

"There, for a space of some five yards square, there was nothing in the water save the fishes; but all about them was a dense wall of water-milfoil and other aquatic plants. The fish were accustomed to the boat, and moved to and fro leisurely, from side to side of the weedless space, or were stationary. Suddenly a large roach dashed into the midst of them, and instantly every fish was still as a stone. The roach hesitated for a moment and was gone, and with it vanished every fish in that open space. The others, somehow, learned of danger from this roach, and, as it proved, none too soon, for no sooner had the many small fishes disappeared than a dozen large white perch made their appearance and roamed about the clear space above the spring, evidently in surprise or disappointment. As plainly as a man might startle a crowd by a cry of 'Fire!' or 'Murder!' that roach informed the fishes that were gathered in the clear waters below me that they must seek safety by flight."

Now, in connection with this story—and Dr. Abbott's fame as a careful observer needs no bush—take the following fact, established by scientific authority: In many fishes the swim bladder has intimate relations with the hearing organ. In the simplest condition these relations consist in the prolongation forward of the swim bladder as a blindly ending tube on either side, the blind end coming into direct contact either with the wall of the octocist (hearing organ) itself, or with the fluid surrounding it through a gap in the rigid periotic capsule.

Auditory Mechanism of Many Fishes Greatly Magnifies Perception of Same

A wave of compression, causing a slight inward movement of the swim bladder wall, will bring about a greatly magnified movement of that part of the wall which is in relation with the interior of the auditory capsule. In this way the perception of delicate sounds may be rendered much more perfect.

So, after all, although they have no external ears, fishes seem to possess an auditory apparatus exceedingly well fitted to give them information through sounds. The medium in which they live is dense and elastic, and conveys sound between four and five times more rapidly than the air does.

Every fisherman knows how softly he must tread when he approaches the lurking places of trout. Who knows but that fishes have some means of making sounds, inaudible or unnoticeable to us, which serve to convey information as comprehensible in its way as the cries of birds, the barking of dogs or the whinneying of horses.

The roach that Dr. Abbott saw did something during that dramatic instant of motionlessness which vividly conveyed to his little friends a warning which all understood simultaneously; why should it not have been a "voice" that he uttered? All language is not spoken with tongues or spelled with grammar.
